ADJUSTMENT OF STATUS AND WAIVERS OF INADMISSIBILITY

TERESA DONOVAN, ESQUIRE
BOARD OF IMMIGRATION APPEALS
Adjustment of Status and Waivers of Inadmissibility

Teresa Donovan, Esquire

Objectives:

After this session, you should be able to:

1. Describe the basic procedure for obtaining an employment based immigrant visa petition based on a labor certification.

2. Evaluate an alien’s statutory eligibility for adjustment of status under sections 245(a) and 245(i) in removal proceedings.

3. Determine whether a waiver of inadmissibility is required for the alien to be eligible for AOS.

4. Identify the relevant factors in determining whether to grant a motion to continue proceedings based on a pending immigrant visa petition.

5. Identify the relevant factors in determining whether a motion to reopen for AOS should be granted.

Approach.

Adjustment of status (AOS) requires, inter alia, a thorough understanding of numerous and varied immigrant visa classifications, the grounds of inadmissibility, as well as the corresponding waivers of inadmissibility. These written materials provide an overview of a very broad topic - adjustment of status and waivers of inadmissibility - with citations to applicable statutes and regulations as well as relevant case law. To make the best use of our limited time, we will focus on the core adjustment provision - section 245(a) of the Act - and analyze several of the more problematic issues presented when adjudicating these applications in removal proceedings.

Assignment.

To prepare for this session, please read the relevant statutory sections of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952, as amended, and these materials, including the appendices. Please bring your copy of the Act, Title 8 of the Federal Code of Regulations, and these materials.
Adjustment of Status - Problems

Problem 1: The first respondent to appear before you at a master calendar hearing is Carlos Ortiz, a native and citizen of Mexico. He admits that he entered without inspection on 1-1-04. He concedes that he is inadmissible as charged under section 212(a)(6)(A)(i) of the Act. He informs you that he intends to apply for adjustment of status (AOS) as relief from removal. You ask him to state the basis of application.

1. Carlos reports that he is happily married to an USC & he has an approved I-130 filed on 1-1-05.
   - Is he eligible for 245(a)?
   - Is he eligible for 245(i) treatment?

2. Suppose Carlos tells you that his LPR wife filed an I-130 on 4-1-01. It is approved. He explains that he has been living in the U.S. since 1998 without status and he only returned to Mexico in late 2003 for 30 days to visit his sick mother.
   - Is he eligible for 245(a)? 245(i)?
   - Can he established visa eligibility & availability?
   - Statutorily barred under 245(c)?
   - Admissible?

   - Inadmissible under 212(a)(9) of the Act?

4. Now suppose Carlos is eligible for 245(i) as an IR. He is 23 years old. He has not previously departed the US. He reveals on his I-485 (Part 3, Q 1) that he was convicted of petty larceny 7 years ago. As a result he received a 4-month sentence which he served.
   - Admissible?
   - If not, is he eligible for a waiver?

5. Carlos admits he was convicted twice of petty larceny.
   - Admissible?
   - If not, is he eligible for waiver?
6. Carlos admits he was convicted of forgery 2 years ago and sentenced to a 2-year term of imprisonment.

Admissible?
If not, is he eligible for a waiver?

7. Carlos admits he was convicted of unlawful possession of 40 grams of marijuana 10 years ago and received only a fine.

Admissible?
If not, is he eligible for a waiver?

8. Suppose Carlos is a returning LPR and is found inadmissible as he attempts to reenter the U.S. at Dulles International Airport due to a prior conviction for unlawful possession of 20 grams of marijuana.

Admissible?
If not, is he eligible for a waiver?
Does the fact that he is an arriving alien alter your answer?

9. Suppose Carlos reveals during the merits hearing that he claimed to be a USC when he completed an I-9 form in 2002.

Admissible?
If not, is he eligible for a waiver?

Problem 2: The next respondent in your master calendar is Colleen Cotter, an native and citizen of Ireland. She admits that she overstayed her visitor visa. She was last admitted as a visitor on 1-1-05 for 6 months. She concedes that she is present in the U.S. without a valid visa pursuant to section 237(a)(1)(B) of the Act. She informs you that she intends to apply for AOS as relief from removal. You ask her to state the basis of application.

1. Colleen informs you that she is 22-years-old and the beneficiary of an approved I-140 VP. She explains that she is a skilled worker, a foreign food specialty cook. Her priority date is 7-1-05. You could verify this information by asking for a copy of the approval notice (I-797) and a copy of the LC and an employer’s letter.

Is she eligible for 245(a) adjustment?
If not, why not?
Would it make any difference if her approved visa petition showed that she qualifies for classification under section 203(b)(2) of the Act?
2. Colleen argues that she is in unlawful status at this time - through no fault of her own because she started the LC process while she was still in a valid NIV status.

What section of the Act is she invoking?
Are you convinced by her argument?

3. Colleen informs you that she has an approved I-140 & that her father is the beneficiary of a family based fourth preference visa petition (I-130) filed on 1-1-98, when she was 15-years old.

Is she eligible to apply for AOS?

4. Colleen is applying for AOS on the basis of an approved immediate relative visa petition (I-130) filed on 1-1-06.

Eligible for 245(a)?
Statutorily barred under 245(c)?

5. Colleen is placed in removal proceedings on the allegation that she is an alien smuggler. She admits that she helped smuggle her husband into the US. Until this incident, Colleen was in the US in valid NIV status and has not worked without authorization. She is eligible to apply for AOS as a beneficiary of an approved family based fourth preference visa petition (I-130) filed on 7-1-97.

Eligible for 245(a)?
Admissible?
If not, is she eligible for a waiver?
Adjustment of Status & Waivers of Inadmissibility

Teresa Donovan, Esquire

Approach.

Adjustment of status (AOS) requires, inter alia, a thorough understanding of numerous and varied immigrant visa classifications, 10 categories of grounds of inadmissibility, as well as the corresponding waivers of inadmissibility. In light of the all-inclusive topic and the limited time for training, these materials are based on the core adjustment provision in the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952, as amended, namely, section 245 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. §1255. This document provides you with a 6-point checklist for determining whether a respondent in removal proceedings is eligible for AOS under section 245 of the Act. Also addressed is AOS eligibility under former section 245(i) of the Act and a proposed framework for adjudicating a motion to continue or reopen for purposes of applying for AOS.

Learning Objectives.

After this session, you will be able to:

1. Determine an alien's adjustment eligibility employing the 6-point checklist.

2. Determine the effect of the Child Status Protection Act provisions a pending AOS application.

3. Determine whether an alien is eligible for a waiver under sections 212(a)(9) and 212(h) of the Act.

4. Identify the relevant factors in determining whether to grant a motion to continue or reopen proceedings to afford the alien an opportunity to apply for AOS.

I. The Adjustment Application and the 6-point Checklist

According to section 101(a)(20) of the Act, the term "lawfully admitted for permanent residence" means "the status of having been accorded the privilege of residing permanently" in this country. There are two procedures for acquiring lawful permanent resident (LPR) status: (1) an alien outside the United States (U.S.) can apply for an immigrant visa at a consular post and then apply for admission as an immigrant, OR (2) an alien in the U.S. can apply for adjustment of status (AOS) under section 245(a) of the Act. AOS is generally preferred over consular processing for a number of reasons. An alien avoids the time and expense of oversees travel and may avoid certain grounds of inadmissibility that are triggered by a departure from the U.S. Perhaps most important, the denial of an AOS application, unlike the denial of an immigrant visa oversees, is subject to administrative review.

Once an alien, except an arriving alien, is the subject of removal proceedings, he must apply for AOS before the Immigration Judge (IJ). Section 245(a) of the Act requires that the alien make an application for AOS. The adjustment application (Form I-485) instructions provide a useful checklist to ensure proper filing of the required supporting documentation. The I-485 must be filed with the following documentation:

1. evidence of criminal history, if applicable;
2. birth certificate or other qualifying record of birth;
3. copy of passport page with nonimmigrant visa;
4. photos;
5. evidence of biometric checks;
6. police clearances, if required;
7. medical examination (except for fiancé(e)s and refugees who had exam in prior year and registry applicants);
8. Form G-235A (biographic information sheet);
9. a binding affidavit of support as specified under section 213A of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1183a, or employment letter; and
10. evidence of visa eligibility and availability (e.g. USCIS approval notice).

IJ s may not grant adjustment until the DHS has completed the biometric and related security checks. See OPPM 05-03.

If an alien is inadmissible and needs to apply for a waiver of inadmissibility, the waiver form is filed simultaneously with the adjustment application. The appropriate form and supporting documentation will be dictated by the particular waiver sought. For example, a waiver under section 212(h)(criminal) or (i)(fraud) of the Act, is filed on Form
I-601. An alien seeking more than one waiver is permitted to file a single form and fee. See 8 C.F.R. § 1212.7.

In removal proceedings, an Immigration Judge (IJ) may grant an alien's application for AOS pursuant to section 245(a) of the Act, if the alien:

1. has been inspected and admitted or paroled into the U.S.;
2. is eligible to receive an immigrant visa;
3. has an immigrant visa is immediately available;
4. is not statutorily barred from AOS;
5. is admissible to the U.S., or, if inadmissible, eligible for a waiver of inadmissibility; and,
6. warrants a favorable exercise of discretion.

The burden of proof is on the alien to establish eligibility for such relief. See 8 C.F.R. § 1240.8(d). This paper develops this 6-point checklist.

II. Inspected and Admitted or Paroled.

Sections 101(a)(13)(A) and 245(a) of the Act taken together require that an alien be lawfully admitted after inspection and authorization by an immigration officer to be eligible for AOS. [This requirement can be waived under section 245(i) of the Act.] The term “admission” is defined in section 101(a)(13)(A) of the Act as “the lawful entry of the alien into the United States after inspection and authorization by an immigration officer.” Section 235(a)(3) of the Act requires that an applicant for admission be inspected by an immigration officer. The burden is on the respondent to establish that he did appear before the immigration inspector. Generally, the respondent will present an I-94 card and/or a passport stamp to establish inspection and admission to the U.S.

An arriving alien, defined at 8 C.F.R. § 1001.(q) (including an alien paroled into the U.S. under section 212(d)(5) of the Act), is ineligible to apply for AOS in deportation and removal proceedings. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.2(a)(1). See also section 101(a)(13)(B) (an alien who is paroled into the U.S. under section 212(d)(5) of the Act has not been admitted to the United States) of the Act.

There is a narrow regulatory exception to this general rule. Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 1245.2(a)(1), an arriving alien, who is the subject of deportation or removal proceedings, may apply for adjustment if: (1) the alien filed for adjustment with the DHS's United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) while in the U.S.; (2) the alien departed and returned pursuant to the terms of a grant of advance parole to pursue the adjustment application (I-512); (3) USCIS denied the application; and (4) the DHS placed the alien in removal proceedings either upon the alien's return to the U.S. or when it denied the application. See also 71 Fed. Reg. 27585 (May 12, 2006). These regulations do not address aliens in exclusion proceedings. Matter of Castro, 21 I&N Dec. 379 (BIA 1996).
After the promulgation of the May 2006, regulations, the Immigration Judges and the Board readily denied an arriving alien's motion to continue or reopen for AOS for lack of jurisdiction over the AOS application. The Eleventh Circuit concurred with this position. See Scheerer v. U.S. Att'y Gen., 513 F.3d 1244 (11th Cir. 2008). Other circuits disagree. In Gao Ni v. BIA, 520 F.3d 125, 129-30 (2nd Cir. 2008), the Second Circuit found the Board's denial of such a motion unresponsive because it was simply a "rote recital of a jurisdictional statement." The Ninth Circuit had reached the same conclusion in Kalilu v. Mukasey, 548 F.3d 1215 (9th Cir. 2008). Both the Second and Ninth Circuits remanded the cases for the Board to determine if a continuance or reopening was warranted so that the arriving alien would have the time and opportunity to apply for AOS before the DHS without being deported. See also Ceta v. Mukasey, 535 F.3d 639 (7th Cir. 2008) (same).

There is nothing in the applicable regulations that would preclude an arriving alien who is the subject of removal proceedings from applying for AOS before the DHS. 8 C.F.R. §§ 245.2(a)(1), 1245.2(a)(1)(ii). The fact that an alien is the subject of a final order of removal does not preclude the DHS from adjudicating the application. See generally Matter of C-H., 917 N Dec. 265 (BIA 1991) (alien with unexecuted exclusion order is eligible for adjustment of status before the district director if eligible for an immigrant visa and is otherwise admissible).

III. Visa Eligibility

It is well established that IJs have no jurisdiction over the immigrant visa petition. However, because visa eligibility is a key requirement for adjustment of status, it is important to understand the petition process. Section 204 of the Act authorizes granting immigrant status to an alien on the basis of a qualifying relationship. Regulations at 8 C.F.R. Part 204 set out the visa petition filing process. Although our immigration system is premised on a visa requirement, there are certain classes of aliens who can adjust status without a visa. Part A below addresses those categories of aliens who must have an immigrant visa to apply for AOS. Part B identifies those classes of aliens who can apply for AOS without a visa.

An AOS application cannot be based on an approved visa petition that has already been used by the beneficiary to obtain adjustment of status or admission as an immigrant. Matter of Villarreal-Zuniga, 23 I&N Dec. 886 (BIA 2006). The fact that an alien is an LPR does not preclude him or her from readjusting status on the basis of a new immigrant visa. See e.g. Matter of Mendez, 21 I&N Dec. 296 (BIA 1996).

A. Immigrant visa classifications

Aliens can adjust their status based on a family-based visa petition (Form I-130) or an employment-based visa petition (Form I-140). These visa petition procedures are discussed below.
1. Family based (FB) immigrants

Section 201(b)(2)(A)(i) of the Act defines an immediate relative (IR) as an alien who is the child, spouse or parent of United States citizen (USC). This category is not subject to annual numerical limitations so a visa is available when the visa petition is approved. A USC child must be at least 21 years of age in order to petition for his or her parent. For AOS purposes, a "child" is defined at section 101(b)(1) of the Act.

Section 203(a) of the Act authorizes four family based visa preferences: FB-1 (unmarried sons and daughters of USC); FB-2A (spouses and children of LPRs); FB-2B (unmarried sons and daughters of LPRs); FB-3 (married sons and daughters of USC); and, FB-4 (brothers and sisters of USC).

Pursuant to sections 204(a)(1)(A)(iii)-(iv) and 204(a)(1)(B)(ii)-(iii) of the Act, a battered spouse (a husband or wife), child, or parent can self-petition without the abusive USC/LPR spouse/parent's knowledge or help. See Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (VAWA). The petition (I-360) is filed with the USCIS. Aliens who entered without inspection are eligible to apply for adjustment. The statutory bars to adjustment set forth at section 245(c) of the Act do not apply. Nor does the public charge ground of inadmissibility. Also, an alien may apply for a waiver of inadmissibility under sections 212(g), (h), or (i) of the Act, without having a qualifying family member. Important Note: The record of proceeding is to be labeled battered spouse case and is subject to strict confidentiality provisions. A breach of confidentiality can result in a disciplinary action and fines.

A two step process underlies the family based adjustment application. The two steps are:

a. obtain an approved visa petition (I-130) from the USCIS
b. apply for AOS before the USCIS or the IJ.

This 2-step process can be summarized as follows.

First, the USC or LPR (petitioner) files a Petition for Alien Relative (I-130) on behalf of his or her qualifying family member (beneficiary) with the DHS. The petitioner must establish his or her own USC or LPR status, the bona fides of the claimed relationship to the beneficiary, and show that the family relationship meets the statutory requirements. A pending or approved I-130 does not entitle the beneficiary to work or reside in the United States.

Once the I-130 is approved and an immigrant visa is immediately available, the alien may apply for AOS. Because there is no limit on the number of visas issued to IRs, they can always establish visa availability. However, there is an annual limit on the number of visas issued to aliens in the preference categories under section 203(a) of the Act. The Department of State (DOS) tracks visa availability in its monthly Visa Bulletin. A visa is immediately available when the alien’s priority date is earlier than the specified allocation cut-off number shown on the current Visa Bulletin. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(g)(1). The alien’s priority date is fixed when the I-130 is filed with the DHS. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(g)(2).

An alien may file the I-130 and the I-485 concurrently if an immigrant visa is immediately available at the time of filing the application. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.2(a)(2)(B).

2. Employment based (EB) immigrants

Sections 203(b)(1) through (5) of the Act authorize five employment based visa preferences: EB-1 (priority workers); EB-2 (aliens who are members of the professions holding advanced degrees or aliens of exceptional ability); EB-3 (skilled workers, professional, and other workers); EB-4 (special immigrants (as described in sections 101(a)(27)(C) through (M) of the Act)); and, EB-5 (investors). Each category has its own statutory and regulatory requirements.

A three step process underlies two of the employment based visa categories set forth at sections 203(b)(2)(aliens who are professionals with advanced degrees or who are of exceptional ability) (EB-2) and (3)(A)(i) (skilled workers) (ii)(professional) and (iii) (other workers) (EB-3) of the Act. The three steps are:

- a. obtain a labor certification from the Department of Labor
- b. obtain an approved visa petition (I-140) from the USCIS
- c. apply for AOS before the USCIS or the IJ.

This 3-step process is summarized below.

An alien seeking an immigrant visa as an EB-2 or EB-3 worker must have an employer who has extended an offer of employment and is willing to file an Application for Permanent Employment Certification (Form ETA 9098, formerly ETA-750) (labor certification) with the Department of Labor (DOL), and an Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker (I-140) with the DHS, on his or her behalf.

An alien’s employer or prospective employer initiates the immigrant visa process by filing a labor certification with the DOL. The 10-page labor certification application details the job offered, the minimum job requirements, the offered wage, the recruitment information, and the alien’s education and work experience. The alien must possess the minimum job requirements at the time the labor certification is filed. The education and experience required for the position (set forth at Part H of the application) determines the alien’s immigrant visa classification (EB-2 or EB-3). For example, an alien seeking a labor certification for a job requiring two years of training or experience, will be classified as an EB-3 “skilled worker” under section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Act. If less than two years of training or experience is required, the alien will be classified as an EB-3 “other worker” under section 203(b)(3)(A)(iii) of the Act.

The DOL will only approve a labor certification when a test of the labor market shows that there are not sufficient United States (U.S.) workers available for the job and that the employment of the alien will not adversely affect similarly situated U.S. workers. See section 212(a)(5) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. §1182(a)(5). Therefore, before filing the labor certification, an employer is required to conduct a recruitment campaign to test the local labor market to determine if there is an minimally qualified U.S. worker for the position. If the employer finds even one minimally qualified U.S. worker who is willing to accept the job offer, the labor certification cannot be filed. When an employer files the labor certification he attests, inter alia, that he has advertised the job opportunity in compliance with DOL regulations, that the job has been and is open to any U.S. worker, and, that any U.S. workers who applied for the job were rejected for lawful job-related reasons. Although the employer does not submit evidence of his advertising and recruitment campaign to the DOL, he is required to retain such documentation in the event of a DOL audit. The DOL conducts random audits of employers’ labor certifications for quality control purposes. A pending or approved labor certification does not entitle the alien to live or work in the U.S.

Until last year, employers could substitute the alien named in the labor certification with another alien while the labor certification or I-140 was pending. Employers are now prohibited from substituting alien workers. Labor certifications now have an expiration date. Employers have 180 days from the date a labor certification is approved to file the corresponding I-140. See 71 Fed. Reg. 27904 (May 17, 2007), codified at 20 C.F.R. §§ 656.11, 30(b).

Once the labor certification is approved, the employer (petitioner) files the I-140 with the DHS on the alien’s (beneficiary) behalf. The alien’s visa classification (EB-2 or EB-3) is specified on Part 2 of the I-140. The petitioner must provide documentation establishing that the employment relationship meets the statutory requirements. The petitioner must submit the approved labor certification as well as evidence showing that at the time the labor certification was filed he had the ability to pay the offered wage and the alien possessed the required education and experience for the job offered. See 8 C.F.R. §§ 204.5(a), (c), (g), (k) and (l). See also Hoosier Care v. Chertoff, 482 F.3d 987 (7th Cir. 2007) (J. Posner clarifying the division of responsibilities between DHS and DOL in adjudicating I-140s and labor certifications). A pending or approved I-140 does not entitle the alien to live or work in the United States.

Third, once the I-140 is approved and a visa is immediately available the alien can apply for adjustment of status. As with the family based immigrants, an I-140 may be filed concurrently with the I-485 if an immigrant visa number is immediately available at the time of filing the application. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.2(a)(2)(B).

If the priority date is not current, then the I-140 is filed as a stand-alone petition (the I-485 can then be filed as soon as the alien’s priority date has been reached, even if the Visa availability is determined in the same manner as the family based cases. All employment preference categories are subject to numerical restrictions.
For EB-2 and EB-3 workers, the priority date is fixed when the labor certification is filed with the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. §§ 204.1(c), 204.5(d).

Because an employment based petition and AOS process can be a lengthy, Congress enacted section 204(j) of the Act, which gives aliens some flexibility to change jobs and employers during the process. This “portability” provision allows an I-140 visa petition for an alien whose I-485 application is filed and remains unadjudicated for 180 days or more to remain valid with respect to a new job if the alien changes jobs or employers so long as the new job is in the same or a similar occupational classification as the job for which the I-140 was filed.

In Matter of Perez Vargas, 23 I&N Dec. 829 (BIA 2005), the Board found that IJs have no authority to determine whether an alien’s approved I-140 petition remains valid under section 204(j) of the Act, after an alien changes jobs or employers. In Perez Vargas
v. Gonzales, 478 F.3d 191 (4th Cir. 2007), the Fourth Circuit reversed the Board’s decision.
The Fourth Circuit concluded that because IJs have exclusive jurisdiction over AOS applications for aliens in removal proceedings, they necessarily have jurisdiction over the application of section 204(j) of the Act. Id. 194. Moreover, section 204(j) does not distinguish between aliens applying for AOS before the IJ or the DHS. Id. 195. The Fifth and Sixth Circuits subsequently agreed with the Fourth Circuit. See Sung v. Keisler, 505
F.3d 372 (5th Cir. 2007) and Matovski v. Gonzales, 492 F.3d 722 (6th Cir. 2007).

Aliens applying for EB-4 classification are self-petitioners who file a Form I-360 with the USCIS along with evidence that they meet the statutory requirements. Of special interest to IJs in removal proceedings are EB-4 special immigrant juveniles. Pursuant to section 101(a)(27)(J) of the Act, an alien who is unmarried, under 21 years old, and is a ward of the state or in foster care (due to abuse, neglect, or abandonment) can self-petition for an immigrant visa. See generally 8 C.F.R. § 204.11. Juveniles who entered without inspection are eligible to apply for adjustment. The statutory bars to adjustment set forth at section 245(c) of the Act do not apply. Nor does the public charge ground of inadmissibility. Also, such juveniles may apply for a waiver of inadmissibility under section 212(g), (h), or (i) without having a qualifying family member. A juvenile in the custody of HHS must obtain the consent of DHS to apply for the required court order.

3. Diversity immigrants

Pursuant to section 203(c)(1) of the Act, aliens from specified countries can enter the annual diversity visa lottery. 110,000 alien applicants are selected by lottery every year who are given the chance to obtain one of the authorized 55,000 immigrant visas. A selected alien is issued a lottery number, the smaller the number the more likely that he will obtain a visa. The Visa Bulletin tracks the lottery rank numbers and specifies the cutoff number. Qualifying family members are eligible to accompany the principle alien regardless of their nationality.

B. AOS without an immigrant visa

1. Asylee/refugee adjustment under section 209 of the Act

Under section 209(a) of the Act, an alien who has been admitted to the United States as a refugee pursuant to section 207 of the Act (from outside the United States) may adjust his or her status after one year of continuous physical presence in the U.S. A spouse or child of a refugee is entitled to the same admission status as such refugee if accompanying, or following to join such refugee. See section 207(c)(2) of the Act. See also Matter of H-N-, 22 I&N Dec. 1039 (BIA 1999) (the IJ has jurisdiction to adjudicate a refugee’s AOS application under section 209(a) of the Act).

Under section 209(b) of the Act, an alien granted asylum in the U.S. pursuant to section 208 of the Act is eligible for AOS if he: (1) has been physically present in the U.S. for one year after being granted asylum; (2) continues to be a refugee as defined in section 101(a)(42) of the Act; (3) is not firmly resettled in another country; and (4) is admissible to the U.S. (except as provided under section 209(c) of the Act). See also Matter of K-A-, 23 I&N Dec. 661 (BIA 2004) (the IJ has jurisdiction to adjudicate an asylee’s AOS application under section 209(b) of the Act).

2. Nationality based immigrants

Over the years, Congress has enacted various laws aimed at assisting nationals of certain countries by giving them the opportunity to apply for AOS without first obtaining an approved immigrant visa petition. For example, under the Cuban Adjustment Act of 1966 (CAA) (Pub. L. 89-732), a Cuban national can apply for AOS if he (1) was inspected and admitted or paroled after January 1, 1959; (2) has been physically present in the U.S. for one year after such admission; and (3) is eligible for an immigrant visa and admissible to the U.S. for permanent residence. This provision is applicable to the spouse and child of such Cuban alien, regardless of their citizenship, if they live with the Cuban alien in the U.S. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.2(b); Gonzalez v. McNary, 765 F. Supp. 721; aff’d 980 F.2d 1418 (11th Cir. 1993) (concluding that the express language of section 1 of the Cuban Adjustment Act requires the spouse to reside with the Cuban national). See also Matter of Artigas, 23 I&N Dec. 99 (BIA 1999) (IJ has jurisdiction over AOS application under the CAA when the alien is charged as an arriving alien without a valid visa or entry document because AOS under CAA separate and apart from 245).

The following laws authorized aliens of specified nationalities to apply for AOS without having an immigrant visa. Each law has its own statutory and regulatory requirements and application procedures. While the application period for all these programs has expired, it is useful to be familiar with these various special immigrant visa programs.

- Certain nationals of the Soviet Union, Vietnam, Laos, or Cambodia who were inspected and paroled into the U.S. between 8-15-88 and 9-30-90, after being denied refugee status. See Foreign Operations Appropriations Act for 1990, Pub. L. 101-167; section 245 of the Act, Note 3; 8 C.F.R. § 1245.7.

- Certain Chinese nationals who were in the U.S. at some time between 6-5-89 and 4-11-90. See Chinese Student Protection Act, Pub. L. No. 102-404; section 245 of the Act, Note 6; 8 C.F.R. § 1245.9.

- Certain Polish and Hungarian nationals who were inspected and paroled into the U.S. between 11-1-89 and 12-31-91, after being denied refugee status. See section 646(b) of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (IIRIRA), Division C of Pub. L. No. 104-208; section 245 of the Act, Note 8; 8 C.F.R. § 1245.12.

- Certain Cuban or Nicaraguan nationals who were continuously physically present in the U.S. beginning not later than 12-1-95. See section 202 of the Nicaraguan Adjustment and Central American Relief Act, Pub. L. No. 105-100 (NACARA); section 245 of the Act, Note 9; 8 C.F.R. § 1245.13.

- Certain Haitians who were continuously physically present in the U.S. beginning not later than 12-31-95. See the Haitian Refugee Immigration Fairness Act of 1998 (HRIFA), Pub. L. No. 105-100; section 245 of the Act, Note 10; 8 C.F.R. § 1245.15.

3. Special legislation

Law Enforcement Visas. An alien granted a nonimmigrant visa under section 101(a)(15)(S) (criminal informant), (T)(trafficking victim) or (U) (victims of criminal activity) of the Act, may apply for AOS under section 245(j), (l), or (m) of the Act, respectively.
Each nonimmigrant and AOS provision has its own eligibility requirements and application procedure.

Health Care Workers. Certain health care workers (H-1B nurses) may apply for adjustment of status. 8 C.F.R. § 1245.14.

US Patriot Act. Under section 421 of the Act, aliens whose preference immigrant visa petitions were revoked or terminated due to the events of 9/11 can apply for special immigrant status. Under section 423 of the Act, certain aliens can self-petition. Qualifying aliens file Form I-360 with the USCIS. Once the I-360 is approved such aliens can apply for AOS.

Amnesty provisions. Certain aliens were authorized to apply for AOS under legalization provisions at section 245A of the Act, and the special agricultural workers (SAW) under section 210 of the Act. The Immigration Courts and the Board have no jurisdiction to adjudicate these applications. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.11(b)(3).

IV. Visa Availability

A. Priority dates

All family and employment preference categories set forth at sections 203(a) and (b) of the Act are subject to annual numerical restrictions. As stated, the Department of State (DOS) tracks visa availability in its monthly Visa Bulletin. A visa is immediately available when the alien’s priority date is earlier than the specified allocation cut-off number shown on the current Visa Bulletin. 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(g)(1). The alien’s priority date is fixed when the I-130 is filed with the DHS. 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(g)(2). For employment based applicants, the priority date is fixed when the labor certification is filed with the DOL. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The alien’s priority date and preference category are shown on the USCIS Notice of Action (Form I-797).

In certain cases, an alien who is the beneficiary of more than one approved I-140 visa petition, may retain the priority date from the first-filed visa petition. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(e) (an alien who is the beneficiary of more than one approved I-140 is entitled to the earliest priority date).

Sometimes visa numbers regress to such an extent that an immigrant visa is available when an alien filed the I-485, but not when the DHS or the IJ adjudicates the I-485. This situation highlights the difference between visa availability and the allocation of an immigrant visa. See Hernandez v. Ashcroft, 345 F.3d 824, 844 n. 21 (9th Cir. 2003). Pursuant to an INS Operating Instruction (OI) 245.4(a)(6), “applications for adjustment of status filed with visa availability, which cannot be approved solely because a visa number is not available at the time of processing, should be held in abeyance pending the allocation of a visa number.” See Matter of Torres, 19 I&N Dec. 371 n.3 (BIA 1986).
Board gave effect to this OI in the context of deportation proceedings and later in the context of removal proceedings. See Matter of Ho, 15 I&N Dec. 692 (BIA 1976); Matter of Briones, 24 I&N Dec. 355, 372 n. 3 (BIA 2007); Merchant v. U.S. Att'y Gen., 461 F.3d 1375, 1379 n. 7 (11th Cir. 2006). In Matter of Ko, 15 I&N Dec. 695 (BIA 1976), the Board found that the respondent’s adjustment application could not be held in abeyance pursuant to OI 245.4(a)(6), because his eligibility for adjustment of status was not solely based on the lack of a visa number.

B. Derivative beneficiaries.

Spouses and qualifying children (unmarried and under 21 years old) of aliens with approved visa petitions under sections 203(a) and (b) or a diversity visa under section 203(c) of the Act, may accompany or follow to join to the principle alien provided the relationship between the principal alien and the derivative beneficiary existed before the principal becomes an LPR and at the time the derivative beneficiary becomes a LPR. See section 203(d) of the Act. Derivative beneficiaries are eligible to adjust their status on the basis of the principle applicant’s visa petition. They do not need their own petition. Spouse and children receive the same priority date as the principal alien. 8 C.F.R. § 204.2. Derivative beneficiaries must meet the same adjustment requirements and restrictions as the principal under section 245(a) of the Act. Alternatively, those derivative beneficiaries who are outside the U.S. may undergo consular processing once the principal alien has adjusted his or her status in the U.S.

This provision does not apply to IRs as defined in section 201(b)(2)(A)(i) of the Act. 8 C.F.R. § 204.2(a)(4). Therefore, the child of a person who marries a USC is not entitled to derivative status. This means that the USC parent or the step-parent must file an I-130 on behalf of his or her spouse and each child. Notably, the children of a self-petitioning widow and widowers and abused spouses of USCs are considered IRs. 8 C.F.R. §§ 204.2(b)(4) and (c)(4).

C. Automatic change of preference classification & automatic revocation of approved visa petition

Changes in the beneficiary’s marital status and age, or the petitioner’s citizenship can alter the beneficiary’s visa classification. 8 C.F.R § 204.2(i). These automatic changes in the alien’s classification alter visa availability. A change in the alien beneficiary’s marital status can result in the automatic conversion of the alien’s preference classification. For example, a currently valid I-130 classifying an unmarried son or daughter in FB-1 status shall be regarded as having been approved for FB-3 when the son or daughter marries. 8 C.F.R § 204.2(i)(1)(i). The child of a USC who marries is automatically reclassified from an IR to FB-3 status. 8 C.F.R § 204.2(i)(1)(ii). A married child of a USC whose marriage is terminated shall be reclassified from FB-3 to an IR or F-2, depending on the child’s age. 8 C.F.R § 204.2(i)(1)(iii). The unmarried child of a USC who turns 21-years-old is reclassified from an IR or F-1. 8 C.F.R § 204.2(i)(1)(iv).

Similarly, a change in the petitioner’s citizenship can result in the automatic conversion of the alien beneficiary’s preference classification. The naturalization of a parent petitioner will upgrade his or her unmarried children from FB-2 classification to IR or FB-1 status, depending on the age of the child. 8 C.F.R § 204.2(i)(3).

Certain changes can also result in the automatic revocation of the visa petition. See generally 8 C.F.R § 205. For example, a currently valid visa petition classifying an unmarried son or daughter for FB-2 status shall be automatically revoked when the son or daughter marries. See 8 C.F.R § 205.1(a)(1)(i)(l). In the case of an employment based visa petition, the termination of the petitioner’s business will result in the automatic revocation of the visa petition.

D. Child Status Protection Act (CSPA)

The Child Status Protection Act (CSPA), enacted on August 6, 2002, added several provisions to the Act to protect children from losing their visa eligibility by aging-out - by turning 21 years of age, while their visa petition or adjustment application was pending. See section 101(b) of the Act (defining a “child” as an unmarried person under 21 years of age). Prior to the enactment of the CSPA, an unmarried child of a USC who turned 21-years of age while the DHS was adjudicating his or her I-130 would be reclassified from an IR to FB-1. Or, an unmarried child of an LPR who turned 21 would be reclassified from FB-2A to FB-2B. An unmarried child who sought derivative status pursuant to 203(d) of the Act and who turned 21 during the pendency of the application would lose visa eligibility altogether.

Now, pursuant to the CSPA rules, for purposes of determining a child’s visa classification, the child’s age is fixed on the date of a specified event such as the filing of a visa petition, the child’s divorce, or the parent’s naturalization. The applicable rule depends on whether the child’s parent is a USC, LPR, asylee, refugee or diversity immigrant. These provisions do not apply to children of HRIFA and NACARA applicants or to family unity beneficiaries or those applying for special immigrant juvenile status. Section 204(k) of the Act permits an alien to elect out of these special rules. These provisions are interpreted through USCIS and DOS memoranda (which are available on the DHS website) because regulations have not yet been promulgated.

Three rules apply to the children of USC’s and are set forth at sections 201(f)(1), (2) and (3) of the Act. A child’s age is fixed at the time the I-130 is filed. An I-130 filed by a USC for an unmarried child who later turns 21 will remain an IR, not a FB-1. See section 201(f)(1) of the Act.
A child's age is fixed on the date of a parent's naturalization. An LPR who files an I-130 for a child and who later naturalizes automatically converts the petition from FB-2A classification to IR or FB-1. Or an FB-2B petition will be reclassified to an FB-3. The child’s age on the date the parent naturalizes will determine the visa classification. See section 201(f)(2) of the Act.

A child's age is fixed on the date of his or her divorce. A USC who files an I-130 for a married child and whose marriage is terminated automatically converts the petition from FB-3 classification to FB-1 or IR. See section 201(f)(3) of the Act. The child's age on the date of the divorce will determine the visa classification.

The rules governing the CSPA-age of children of LPRs are set forth at sections 203(h)(1) and (2) of the Act. Section 203(h)(1) of the Act sets forth the mathematical formula for determining the child's age. Basically, a child’s CSPA-age is determined by subtracting the number of days the visa petition is pending (from receipt date to approval date) from the child’s actual age on the date the I-130 is approved or a visa becomes available, whichever is later. A child must apply for LPR status within a year of acquiring visa availability.

Section 203(h)(3) is not an age-out provision, but allows for a child who aged out to keep his or her priority date as the date the original petition was filed.

The rules governing the children of asylees and refugees are set forth at sections 208(b)(3) and 207(c)(2) of the Act, respectively. The age of the child is fixed as of the date the asylum application (I-589) or the refugee petition (I-590) is filed.

These provisions are effective as of the date of enactment, August 6, 2002. In Matter of Avila-Perez, 24 I&N Dec. 78 (BIA 2007), the Board concluded that the respondent, whose I-130 was approved before August 6, 2002, but who applied for AOS after that date, retained his status as a child under section 201(f)(1) of the Act, because he was under 21 when the I-130 was filed.

V. Statutory Bars to 245(a) AOS

A. Section 245 bars

Sections 245(c) through (f) of the Act list certain categories of aliens who are ineligible to AOS. See also 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(c) (list of aliens ineligible for AOS).

Section 245(c) of the Act enumerates eight classes of aliens who are ineligible for AOS. [VAWA self-petitioners are not subject to the 245(c) bars to AOS.] Most problematic for AOS applicants are the bars at sections 245(c)(2), (7) and (8) of the Act. Except for IRRs and certain special immigrants, section 245(c)(2) of the Act precludes aliens who have worked without authorization or who are not in lawful status from AOS. Section 245(c)(7) bars an employment based immigrant from AOS if he is not in lawful nonimmigrant status. This would bar certain parolees from AOS since they would not have a valid nonimmigrant status. Section 245(c)(8) bars aliens who have worked without authorization or who have violated their nonimmigrant status.

Pursuant to section 245(k) of the Act, the bars at 245(c)(2), (7) and (8) do not apply to certain employment based immigrants whose lawful status or unauthorized employment lasted less than an aggregate of 180 days.

Section 244(f)(4) of the Act specifies that those aliens with Temporary Protected Status (TPS) are maintaining lawful status as a nonimmigrant for AOS eligibility purposes.

Under sections 245(d) and (f) of the Act, an alien who is a conditional resident under section 216 or 216A (alien entrepreneurs) of the Act, may not adjust status under 245(a) of the Act. See 8 C.F.R. 1245.1(c)(5).

Under section 245(d) of the Act, a fiancée of a USC as defined at section 101(a)(15)(K) of the Act, may adjust on a conditional basis under section 216 of the Act, but not under section 245(a) of the Act, as a result of alien’s marriage to the USC who filed the fiancée petition. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(c)(6). But see Choin v. Mukasey, 537 F.3d 1116 (9th Cir. 2008) (finding that section 245(d) of the Act does not make a K visa holder automatically ineligible to adjust status under section 216 if he or she divorces before his or her I-485 is adjudicated).

Under section 245(e) of the Act, an alien who married while in proceedings is precluded from adjusting status based on that marriage unless he can establish by clear and convincing evidence that the marriage was entered into in good faith and not for immigration purposes. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(c)(8). Only the DHS has the authority to determine if the alien has established that such marriage was entered into in good faith under section 245(e)(3) of the Act. 8 C.F.R. § 245.1(c)(8)(v) provides that other than the approved visa petition, “[t]he applicant will not be required to submit additional evidence to qualify for the bona fide marriage exemption ... unless the district director [who approves the petition] determines that such additional evidence is needed ....” In other words, the approved I-130 is sufficient to establish that the alien qualifies for the exemption. IJs are without authority to make this determination or to review the bona fides of the respondent’s marriage.

B. Other classes of aliens barred from 245(a)

An alien who made a frivolous asylum application is permanently ineligible for AOS. See section 208(d)(6) of the Act.
An exchange visitor under section 101(a)(15)(J) of the Act who has not met the 2-year foreign residency requirement or obtained a waiver of that requirement is ineligible for AOS. See section 212(e) of the Act; 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(c)(2).

Foreign diplomats and officials, treaty traders and investors, and employees of international organizations under sections 101(a)(15)(A), (E) and (G) of the Act, respectively, who have not executed and submitted a written waiver his or her privileges and immunities are ineligible for AOS. See section 247(b) of the Act; 8 C.F.R. § 1245.1(c)(3).

An alien who was ordered removed in absentia is ineligible for AOS for 10 years from the date the removal order is issued. See section 240(b)(7) of the Act.

An alien who was granted voluntary departure and failed to depart within the specified period is ineligible for AOS for a 10-year period. See section 240B(a) of the Act. Pursuant to Dada v. Mukasey, 128 S. Ct. 2307 (2008), when an alien submits a request to withdraw his or her voluntary departure and the request precedes the expiration of the voluntary departure period, the request must be given effect. The alien shall not be barred from discretionary relief under section 240B(d) of the Act.

VI. Admissibility & Waivers of Inadmissibility

An alien must establish that he is admissible to the U.S. [that is, that he is not inadmissible within the meaning of section 212(a) of the Act] or, if inadmissible, is eligible for a waiver of inadmissibility, to adjust status under section 245(a) of the Act.

An alien must be admissible to the U.S. to be eligible for AOS. Sections 212(a)(1) through (10) of the Act specify 10 classes of aliens who are inadmissible from the U.S. These include aliens with certain communicable diseases, criminals, terrorists, those likely to become a public charge, those without the required visas or travel documents, alien smugglers, and other immigration violators. An alien is admissible if he is not subject to the grounds of inadmissibility under section 212(a) of the Act, or, if inadmissible, is eligible for a corresponding waiver of inadmissibility.

If the respondent is applying for AOS as a self-petitioner (e.g. VAWA, special immigrant juveniles) or pursuant to a nationality based or law enforcement provision, be on the alert for special waiver provisions. For example, VAWA applicants are eligible for AOS even if they entered without inspection or are otherwise barred under section 245(c) of the Act. VAWA applicants are also eligible to apply for an 212(h) waiver without having to establish extreme hardship to a qualifying family member. See section 212(h)(1)(C) of the Act. Aliens adjusting status pursuant to sections 245(j)(criminal informants), (l)(trafficking victim) or (m)(victims of criminal activity) of the Act, have additional waiver provisions.
Discussed below are the more commonly sought waivers of inadmissibility.

A. Crime waiver: 212(c)

Although the section 212(c) waiver was repealed over 10 years ago, it is available in certain circumstances. The current contours of this waiver of inadmissibility is beyond the scope of this outline.

B. Crime waiver: 212(h)

Section 212(h) of the Act provides 3 separate and distinct waivers - under sections 212(h)(1)(A), (B) and (C) - for certain criminal grounds of inadmissibility set forth at section 212(a)(2) of the Act. The most common waiver is under section 212(h)(1)(B) of the Act. In Matter of Michel, 21 I&N Dec. 1101 (BIA 1998), the Board addresses an alien’s eligibility for adjustment of status in conjunction with a 212(h) waiver.

If the applicant is an LPR and has been convicted of an aggravated felony or has not resided in the U.S. for a period of not less than 7 years immediately preceding the date of initiation of removal proceedings - the alien is ineligible for a 212(h) waiver. See Matter of Rotimi, 24 I&N Dec. 567 (BIA 2008) (holding that an alien has not “lawfully resided” in the U.S. for 212(h) eligibility purposes during any periods in which the alien was an applicant for asylum or for adjustment of status and lacked other basis on which to claim lawful residence).

A returning LPR seeking to overcome a ground of inadmissibility is not required to apply for AOS in conjunction with a 212(h) waiver. He need only apply for the waiver. See Matter of Abosi, 24 I&N Dec. 204 (BIA 2007). See Martinez v. Mukasey, 519 F.3d 532 (5th Cir. 2008) (discussing the difference between admission and adjustment for 212(h) eligibility purposes).

In another case, the Board found that the exception under section 212(h) of the Act for an alien convicted of a single offense of simple possession of 30 grams or less of marijuana did not apply where an alien’s conviction was enhanced by virtue of his possession of marijuana in a “drug-free zone.” See Matter of Martinez-Zapata, 24 I&N Dec. 424 (BIA 2007).

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 1212.7(d), a 212(h) waiver may not be granted in the exercise of discretion in cases involving “violent or dangerous crimes” except in extraordinary circumstances such as those involving national security or foreign policy considerations. See Samuels v. Chertoff, 2008 WL 5254987 (2nd Cir. Dec. 19, 2008) (upholding 8 C.F.R. § 1212.7(d)). This regulation codifies the Attorney General’s decision in Matter of Jean, 23 I&N Dec. 373 (A.G. 2002).
C. Fraud waiver: 212(i)

Section 212(i) of the Act waives certain fraud-related grounds of inadmissibility listed in section 212(a)(6)(C)(i) of the Act. Notably, section 212(i) cannot waive an alien's inadmissibility under section 212(a)(6)(C)(ii) (falsely claiming U.S. citizenship) of the Act. This waiver is like the 212(h)(1)(B) waiver in that the alien must establish extreme hardship to a qualifying family member. To establish eligibility for a 212(i) waiver, an alien must show the requisite hardship to his or her USC/ LPR spouse, son or daughter. (Compare the 212(h) waiver which can be based on a showing of hardship to the alien's USC/ LPR parent as well as his spouse, son or daughter.) See generally Matter of Cervantes, 22 I&N Dec. 560 (BIA 1999), affirmed Cervantes-Gonzales v. INS, 244 F.3d 1001 (9th Cir. 2001).

D. Document waiver: 212(k)

Section 212(k) of the Act provides a narrow waiver for an alien who is inadmissible under section 212(a)(7) of the Act, because he lacks a proper visa or travel documentation. Under section 212(k), an alien may be admitted even though he lacks a properly issued visa if he can establish that he could not possibly have known or ascertained that the visa was improperly issued. In Matter of Aurelio, 19 I&N Dec. 458 (BIA 1987), the Board held that a 212(k) waiver was properly denied where the applicant for admission knew about her father's death prior to the issuance of her visa under section 203(a)(3) (married daughter of USC) of the Act, and she failed to exercise reasonable diligence in ascertaining the effect of her father's death on her immigration status.

E. Alien smuggler waiver: 212(d)(11)

There is a narrow waiver of inadmissibility under section 212(d)(11) of the Act for alien smugglers as described in section 212(a)(6)(E) of the Act. To establish 212(d)(11) waiver eligibility, the alien must be a lawful permanent resident or an immigrant seeking admission or AOS as an IR or immigrant under sections 203(a)(1), (2) or (3) (family based immigrants) of the Act. Also, to qualify for the waiver, the alien must have smuggled only a qualifying family member, in this case, the alien's spouse, parent, son or daughter. See generally Matter of Compean, 21 I&N Dec. 51 (BIA 1995).

F. Aliens previously removed/ unlawfully present: 212(a)(9)

Section 212(a)(9) of the Act is intended to prevent or curtail recidivist immigration violations. This section of the Act applies only to aliens who have been physically present in the U.S., depart, and are attempting to reenter, or are applying for admission or AOS. There are three separate grounds of inadmissibility under subsections (A) (aliens previously removed), (B) (aliens unlawfully present), and (C) (aliens unlawfully present after previous immigration violations). Each has its own waiver.
In Matter of Rodarte, 23 I&N Dec. 905 (BIA 2006), the Board analyzed section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act in the context of an alien applying for AOS in removal proceedings, and found that the relevant period of inadmissibility begins when the alien departs the U.S. after a period of unlawful presence because it is the alien’s departure triggers his or her inadmissibility. The Board remanded the case to the IJ finding the respondent admissible and eligible to apply for AOS.

VII. Discretion

In addition to establishing statutory eligibility for AOS, the alien must demonstrate that he merits relief as a matter of discretion. Factors considered in the exercise of discretion include but are not limited to the following: existence of family ties in the U.S.; length of residence in the U.S.; hardship of traveling abroad; and, preconceived intent to immigrate at the time of entering as a nonimmigrant. Matter of Arai, 13 I&N Dec. 494 (BIA 1974); Matter of Blas, 15 I&N Dec. 626 (BIA 1974; A.G. 1976).

VIII. Section 245(i) of the Act

While Congress decided not to extend 245(i) of the Act, it enacted a grandfather clause to allow certain aliens to continue to benefit from the provision. See generally 66 Fed. Reg. 16383 (March 26, 2001). Pursuant to section 245(i) of the Act, an alien (including a 203(d) derivative beneficiary) who is (1) ineligible for adjustment under section 245(a) of the Act because he entered without inspection, or (2) disqualified under section 245(c) of the Act, may nevertheless adjust status if he is the beneficiary of a visa petition or labor certification that was filed on or before April 30, 2001. For visa petitions or labor certifications filed after January 14, 1998, and before April 30, 2001, the alien must have been physically present in the United States on December 21, 2000. See section 245(i)(1)(C) of the Act.

To be eligible for grandfather status the alien’s pre-April 30, 2001, filing must have been approvable when filed (that is, properly filed, meritorious in fact, and non-frivolous). See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.10(a)(3). In Matter of Jara Riero, 24 I&N Dec. 267 (BIA 2007), the Board analyzed the term approvable when filed, and concluded that the alien was ineligible for 245(i) treatment because the family based visa petition (I-130) was not meritorious in fact, and, consequently, that it was not approvable when filed. See Huarccaya v. Mukasey, 2008 WL 5191771 (2nd Cir. Dec. 12, 2008) (deferring to Jara Riero). The case demonstrates how an alien can use one VP for 245(i) treatment (I-130) and another VP (I-140) as the basis for the AOS application.

Derivative beneficiaries under section 203(d) are also grandfathered aliens even if they do not adjust with the principle alien. So aged out children and divorced spouses are grandfathered aliens so along as they were qualifying dependents at the time the qualifying VP or LC was properly filed. Spouses and children acquired after the filing of the qualifying VP or LC can adjust under 245(i) with the principle alien, but they are not considered grandfathered aliens.

Another issue that arises is whether an alien who was substituted for (took the place of) another alien on a labor certification is eligible for 245(i) treatment. Pursuant to federal regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 1245.10(j), only an alien who was substituted before April 30, 2001, will be eligible for grand-fathering under section 245(j) of the Act. (Remember that substituting aliens on labor certifications is now prohibited.)

Section 245(i) does not apply to section 203(c) diversity immigrants because there is no visa petition or labor certification filing. Diversity lottery-winning letters do not qualify an alien for 245(i) treatment. However, an alien may use a winning diversity visa as the basis for the adjustment of status. See 8 C.F.R. § 1245.10(h).

The issues regarding the interplay between sections 245(i) and 212(a)(9) of the Act appear to have been resolved. The Board has consistently held that 245(i) does not waive the grounds of inadmissibility set forth in sections 212(a)(9)(B) and (C) of the Act.

In Matter of Lemus, 24 I&N Dec. 373 (BIA 2007), the Board held that an alien’s inadmissibility under section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) (departing the U.S. after more than 1 year of lawful presence) of the Act - renders the alien ineligible for 245(i) adjustment.

In Matter of Briones, 24 I&N Dec. 355 (BIA 2007), the Board found that an alien inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(I) (alien who was unlawfully present for an aggregate period of more than 1 year who thereafter reenters or attempts to reenter without inspection) of the Act - was not eligible for 245(i) adjustment. See Mora v. Mukasey, 2008 WL 5220296 (2nd Cir. Dec. 16, 2008) (deferring to Briones); Ramirez-Canales v. Mukasey, 517 F.3d 904 (6th Cir. 2008) (deferred to Briones, but remanded for the Board to consider whether the alien was entitled to 245(i) adjustment, nunc pro tunc).

In Matter of Torres-Garcia, 23 I&N Dec. 866 (BIA 2006), the Board found that an alien, who was inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(II) of the Act, and ineligible for a corresponding waiver of inadmissibility, is ineligible for adjustment under 245(i) of the Act. Several circuit courts have deferred to Torres-Garcia. See e.g. Delgado v. Mukasey, 516 F.3d 65, 74 (2nd Cir. 2008) (deferring to Torres-Garcia); Gonzales v. DHS, 508 F.3d 1227, 1242 (9th Cir 2007) (overruling a prior panel decision and deferring to Torres-Garcia).

IX. Motions to Continue and Reopen for AOS

IJIs are often presented with motions to continue or reopen to allow the USCIS time to adjudicate an underlying visa petition (I-130 or I-140) which, if approved, would render the respondent eligible for AOS. A framework for analyzing these motions is set forth in the feature article in the August 2008 issue of Immigration Law Advisor. An IJ is advised to begin by ascertaining the respondent's place in the 2-step family based or the 3-step employment based adjustment application process. The IJ should then consider all the facts and circumstances of the case. He or she should consider and balance these factors: (1) the overall factual tone of the case including the respondent's criminal, immigration, and marital history; (2) the likelihood of success on the underlying visa petition or adjustment application; (3) statutory eligibility; (4) discretionary eligibility; (5) the Government's position; and (6) other relevant procedural factors. A decision which analyzes and articulates these relevant factors shows an understanding of the significant interest at stake and is likely to withstand judicial review.

Application of Section 212(a)(9) of the Act
(From Office of Immigration Litigation (OIL) Training Materials)

Step 1: Does section 212(a)(9) apply?
Has the alien previously departed the U.S.?
If not, 212(a)(9) does not apply.
If so, go to step 2.

Step 2: Does section 212(a)(9)(A) apply?
Did the alien's previous departure occur after the issuance of a removal or deportation order?
If not, (A) does not apply. Go to step 4.
If so, go to step 3.

Step 3 Does section 212(a)(9)(A)(i) or (ii) apply? (only one will apply)
Was the prior order issued to the alien when he was an arriving alien?
If so, 212(a)(9)(A)(i) applies. The alien is inadmissible for 5 years.
If not, 212(a)(9)(A)(ii) applies. The alien is inadmissible for 10 years.

Except: The AG may consent in advance to the alien applying for readmission under section 212(a)(9)(A)(iii).

Step 4. Does section 212(a)(9)(B)(i) or (ii) or 212(a)(9)(C)(i) apply?
Was alien unlawfully present [prior to a departure from the U.S.] for more than 180 days, but less than 1 year?
If so, (B)(i) applies - the alien is inadmissible for 3 years.
Was alien unlawfully present for more than 1 year?
If so, (B)(ii) applies - the alien is inadmissible for 10 years.

Except: The AG may waive inadmissibility under 212(a)(9)(B) in the case of an immigrant who can show extreme hardship to USC/LPR spouse or parent.

Step 5: Does section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) apply?
Has the alien attempted to reenter or entered the U.S. unlawfully AFTER having been (1) unlawfully present in the U.S. for more than 1 year OR (2) ordered removed.
If so, section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) applies - the alien is inadmissible.

Except: An alien who is inadmissible under 212(a)(9)(C) may apply for a waiver IF he is seeking admission more than 10 years after last departure from the U.S. and AG consents to re-application. Waiver: under certain circumstances, section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) can waived in the case of an alien who is a VAWA self-petitioner.

NOTE: In addition to the required documentation listed above, you should submit one or more of the following types of documentation that may evidence that bona fides of your marriage:

E. Documentation showing joint ownership or property; or

F. A lease showing joint tenancy of a common residence; or

G. Documentation showing co-mingling of financial resources; or

H. Birth certificate(s) of child(ren) born to you, the petitioner, and your spouse together; or

I. Affidavits sworn to or affirmed by third parties having personal knowledge of the bona fides of the marital relationship. (Each affidavit must contain the full name and address, date and place of birth of the person making the affidavit, his or her relationship to the petitioner of beneficiary, if any, and complete information and details explaining how the person acquired his or her knowledge of your marriage); or

J. Any other relevant documentation to establish that there is an ongoing marital union.

NOTE: If you married your husband or wife while your husband or wife was the subject of an exclusion, deportation, removal, or rescission proceeding (including judicial review of the decision in one of these proceedings), this evidence must be sufficient to establish the bona fides of your marriage by clear and convincing evidence.
2. A child and you are the mother: Submit a copy of the child's birth certificate showing your name and the name of your child.

3. A child and you are the father: Submit a copy of the child's birth certificate showing both parents' names and your marriage certificate.

4. A child born out of wedlock and you are the father: If the child was not legitimated before reaching 18 years old, you must file your petition with copies of evidence that a bona fide parent-child relationship existed between the father and the child before the child reached 21 years. This may include evidence that the father lived with the child, supported him or her, or otherwise showed continuing parental interest in the child's welfare.

5. A brother or sister: Submit a copy of your birth certificate and a copy of your brother's or sister's birth certificate showing that you have at least one common parent. If you and your brother or sister have a common father but different mothers, submit copies of the marriage certificates of the father to each mother and copies of documents showing that any prior marriages of either your father or mothers were legally terminated. If you and your brother or sister are related through adoption or through a stepparent, or if you have a common father and either of you were not legitimated before your 18th birthday, see also 8 and 9 below.

6. A mother: Submit a copy of your birth certificate showing your name and your mother's name.

8. Step parent/Step child: If your petition is based on a stepparent-stepchild relationship, you must file your petition with a copy of the marriage certificate of the stepparent to the child's natural parent showing that the marriage occurred before the child's 18th birthday, copies of documents showing that any prior marriages were legally terminated and a copy of the stepparent's birth certificate.

9. Adoptive parent or adopted child: If you and the person you are filing for are related by adoption, you must submit a copy of the adoption decree(s) showing that the adoption took place before the child became 18 years old.

If you adopted the sibling of a child you already adopted, you must submit a copy of the adoption decree(s) showing that the adoption of the sibling occurred before that child's 18th birthday.

In either case, you must also submit copies of evidence that each child was in the legal custody of and resided with the parents who adopted him or her for at least two years before or after adoption. Legal custody may only be granted by a court or recognized government entity and is usually granted at the time of the adoption is finalized. However, if legal custody is granted by a court or recognized government agency prior to the adoption, that time may count to fulfill the two-year legal custody requirement.

What If Your Name Has Changed?

If either you or the person you are filing for is using a name other than shown on the relevant documents, you must file your petition with copies of the legal documents that effected the change, such as a marriage certificate, adoption decree or court order.

What If a Document Is Not Available?

In such situation, submit a statement from the appropriate civil authority certifying that the document or documents are not available. You must also submit secondary evidence, including:

C. Census record: State or Federal census record showing the names, place of birth, date of birth, or the age of the person listed.

D. Affidavits: Written statements sworn to or affirmed by two persons who were living at the time and who have personal knowledge of the event you are trying to prove. For example, the date and place of birth, marriage or death. The person making the affidavit does not have to be a U.S. citizen. Each affidavit should contain the following information regarding the person making the affidavit: his or her full name, address, date and place of birth, and his or her relationship to you, if any, full information concerning the event, and complete details explaining how the person acquired knowledge of the event.

How to Check If the Fees Are Correct
The form fee on this form is current as of the edition date appearing in the lower right corner of this page. However, because USCIS fees change periodically, you can verify if the fees are correct by following one of the steps below:

1. Visit our website at www.uscis.gov, select "Immigration Forms," and check the appropriate fee;

2. Review the fee schedule included in your form package, if you called us to request the form, or

3. Telephone our National Customer Service Center at 1-800-375-5283 and ask for the fee information.

When Will a Visa Become Available?
When a petition is approved for the husband, wife, parent, or unmarried minor child of a United States citizen, these persons are classified as immediate relatives. They do not have to wait for a visa number because immediate relatives are not subject to the immigrant visa limit.

For alien relatives in preference categories, a limited number of immigrant visas are issued each year. The visas are processed in the order in which the petitions are properly filed and accepted by USCIS. To be considered properly filed, a petition must be fully completed and signed, and the fee must be paid.

For a monthly report on the dates when immigrant visas are available, call the U.S. Department of State at (202) 663-1541, or visit: www.travel.state.gov.

If you change your address and you have an application or petition pending with USCIS, you may change your address online at www.uscis.gov, click on "Change your address with USCIS," and follow the prompts. Or you may complete and mail Form AR-11, Alien's Change of Address Card, to:

Notice to Persons Filing for Spouses, If Married Less Than Two Years
Pursuant to section 216 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, your alien spouse may be granted conditional permanent resident status in the United States as of the date he or she is admitted or adjusted to conditional status by a USCIS officer. Both you and your conditional resident spouse are required to file Form I-751, Joint Petition to Remove Conditional Basis of Alien's Permanent Resident Status, during the 90-day period immediately before the second anniversary of the date your alien spouse was granted conditional permanent resident status.
Otherwise, the rights, privileges, responsibilities, and duties that apply to all other permanent residents apply equally to a conditional permanent resident. A conditional permanent resident is not limited to the right to apply for naturalization, file petitions on behalf of qualifying relatives, or reside permanently in the United States as an immigrant in accordance with our Nation's immigration laws.

NOTE: Failure to file the Form I-751 joint petition to remove the conditional basis of the alien spouse's permanent resident status will result in the termination of his or her permanent resident status and initiation of removal proceedings.

Acceptance. Any I-130 petition that is not properly signed or accompanied by the correct fee will be rejected with a notice that the petition is deficient. You may correct the deficiency and resubmit the petition. However, a rejected petition does not retain a filing date. A petition is not considered properly filed until accepted by USCIS.

Initial Processing. Once the petition has been accepted, it will be checked for completeness, including submission of the required initial evidence. If you do not completely fill out the form or file it without the required initial evidence, you will not establish a basis for eligibility, and USCIS may deny your petition.

Requests for More Information. We may request more information or evidence, or we may request that you appear at a USCIS office for an interview. We may also request that you submit the originals of any copy. We will return these originals when they are no longer needed.

Such evidence may include letter(s) from prospective employer(s), evidence of prearranged commitments such as contracts, or a statement from the alien describing plans on how he or she intends to continue work in the United States.

3. A U.S. employer filing for a multinational executive or manager must file the petition with a statement which demonstrates that:

A. If the worker is now employed outside the United States, that he or she has been employed outside the United States for at least one year in the past three years in an executive or managerial capacity by the petitioner or by its parent, branch, subsidiary or affiliate; or, if the worker is already employed in the United States, that he or she was employed outside the United States for at least one year in the three years preceding admission as a nonimmigrant in an executive or managerial capacity by the petitioner or by its parent, branch, subsidiary or affiliate;

B. The prospective employer in the United States is the same employer or a subsidiary or affiliate of the firm or corporation or other legal entity by which the alien was employed abroad;
C. The prospective United States employer has been doing business for at least one year; and

4. A U.S. employer filing for a member of the professions with an advanced degree or a person with exceptional ability in the sciences, arts or business must file the petition with:

A. A labor certification (see General Evidence), or a request for a waiver of a job offer because the employment is deemed to be in the national interest, with documentation provided to show that the beneficiary's presence in the United States would be in the national interest; and either:

1. An official academic record showing that the alien has a U.S. advanced degree or an equivalent foreign degree, or an official academic record showing that the alien has a U.S. baccalaureate degree or an equivalent foreign degree and letters from current or former employers showing that the alien has at least five years of progressive post-baccalaureate experience in the specialty; or

   e. Evidence of membership in professional associations; or
   f. Evidence of recognition for achievements and significant contributions to the industry or field by peers, governmental entities, or professional or business organizations.

3. If the above standards do not readily apply to the alien's occupation, you may submit comparable evidence to establish the alien's eligibility.

5. A U.S. employer filing for a skilled worker must file the petition with:

A. A labor certification (see General Evidence); and

B. Evidence that the alien meets the educational, training, or experience and any other requirements of the labor certification (the minimum requirement is two years of training or experience).

6. A U.S. employer filing for a professional must file the petition with:

C. Evidence that a baccalaureate degree is required for entry into the occupation.

7. A U.S. employer filing for an unskilled worker must file the petition with:

A. A labor certification (see General Evidence); and

B. Evidence that the beneficiary meets any education, training, or experience requirements required in the labor certification.

General Evidence.

1. Labor certification.

Petitions for certain classifications must be filed with a certification from the U.S. Department of Labor or with documentation to establish that the alien qualifies for one of the shortage occupations in the Department of Labor's Labor Market Information Pilot Program or for an occupation in Group I or II of the Department of Labor's Schedule A.

A certification establishes that there are not sufficient workers who are able, willing, qualified, and available at the time and place where the alien is to be employed and that employment of the alien, if qualified, will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of similarly employed U.S. workers. Application for certification is made on Form ETA-750 and is filed at the local office of the State Employment Service. If the alien is in a shortage occupation, or for a Schedule A/Group I or II occupation, you may file a fully completed, uncertified Form ETA-750 in duplicate with your petition for determination by the USCIS that the alien belongs to the shortage occupation.
NOTE: When filing for a Schedule A/Group I or II occupation, the petitioner must include evidence of having complied with the Department of Labor regulations at 20 CFR 656.222(b)(2), which require that the position or positions be properly posted for a minimum of ten consecutive days.

2. Ability to pay wage.

Petitions which require job offers must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective U.S. employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. Such evidence shall be in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

In a case where the prospective U.S. employer employs 100 or more workers, a statement from a financial officer of the organization which establishes ability to pay the wage may be submitted. In appropriate cases, additional evidence, such as profit/loss statements, bank account records, or personnel records, may be submitted.

Translations. Any document containing foreign language submitted to the Service shall be accompanied by a full English language translation which the translator has certified as complete and accurate, and by the translator’s certification that he or she is competent to translate from the foreign language into English.

Copies. Unless specifically required that an original document be filed with an application or petition, an ordinary legible photocopy may be submitted. Original documents submitted when not required will remain a part of the record, even if the submission was not required.

1. The check or money order must be drawn on a bank or other financial institution located in the United States and must be payable in U.S. currency; and

2. Make the check or money order payable to U.S. Department of Homeland Security, unless:

   A. If you live in Guam and are filing your petition there, make it payable to Treasurer, Guam.

Initial processing. Once a Form I-140 has been accepted, it will be checked for completeness, including submission of the required initial evidence. This form is used by a person who is in the United States to apply to U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) to adjust to permanent resident status or register for permanent residence.

This form may also be used by certain Cuban nationals to request a change in the date that their permanent residence began.

1. Based on an immigrant petition.

You may apply to adjust your status if:

A. An immigrant visa number is immediately available to you based on an approved immigrant petition; or

B. You are filing this application with a completed relative petition, special immigrant juvenile petition or special immigrant military petition if approved would make an immigrant visa number immediately available to you.

2. Based on being the spouse or child (derivative) - at the time another adjustment applicant (principal) files to adjust status or at the time a person is granted permanent resident status in an immigrant category that allows derivative status for spouses and children.

A. If the spouse or child is in the United States, the individual derivatives may file their Form I-485 adjustment of status applications concurrently with the Form I-485 for the principal applicant, or file the Form I-485 at anytime after the principal is approved, if a visa number is available.

B. If the spouse or child is residing abroad, the person adjusting status in the United States should file the Form I-824, Application for Action on an Approved Application or Petition, concurrently with the principal's adjustment of status application to allow the derivatives to immigrate to the United States without delay if the principal's adjustment of status application is approved. The fee submitted with the Form I-824 will not be refunded if the principal's adjustment is not granted.

3. Based on admission as the fiancé(e) of a U.S. citizen and subsequent marriage to that citizen.

A. You may apply to adjust status if you were admitted to the United States as the K-1 fiancé(e) of a United States citizen and you married that citizen within 90 days of your entry.

B. If you were admitted as the K-2 child of such a fiancé(e), you may apply to adjust status based on your parent's adjustment application.

4. Based on asylum status.

5. Based on refugee status.

You may apply to adjust status after you have been admitted as a refugee and have been physically present in the United States for one year following your admission, provided that your status has not been terminated.

6. Based on Cuban citizenship or nationality.

A. You are a native or citizen of Cuba, were admitted or paroled into the United States after January 1, 1959, and thereafter have been physically present in the United States for at least one year; or
B. You are the spouse or unmarried child of a Cuban described above and regardless of your nationality, you were admitted or paroled after January 1, 1959, and thereafter have been physically present in the United States for at least one year.

7. Applying to change the date on which your permanent residence began.

If you were granted permanent residence in the United States prior to November 6, 1966, and are a native or citizen of Cuba, or you are the spouse or unmarried child of such an individual, you may ask to change the date your lawful permanent residence began to your date of arrival in the United States or May 2, 1964, whichever is later.

8. Based on continuous residence since before January 1, 1972.

You may apply for permanent residence if you have continuously resided in the United States since before January 1, 1972. This is known as "Registry."

If the EFT cannot be completed because of insufficient funds, we may try to make the transfer up to two times.

How to Check if the Fees Are Correct.

The form and biometric fees on this form are current as of the edition date appearing in the lower right corner of this page. However, because USCIS fees change periodically, you can verify if the fees are correct by following one of the steps below:

1. Visit our website at www.uscis.gov, select "Immigration Forms" and check the appropriate fee;

2. Review the Fee Schedule included in your form package, if you called us to request the form or

3. Telephone our National Customer Service Center at 1-800-375-5283 and ask for the fee information.

NOTE: If your Form I-485 requires payment of a biometric service fee for USCIS to take your fingerprints, photograph or signature, you can use the same procedure to obtain the correct biometric fee.

Any application that is not signed or is not accompanied by the correct application fee will be rejected with a notice that the application is deficient. You may correct the deficiency and resubmit the application. An application is not considered properly filed until accepted by USCIS.

Initial processing.

Once an application has been accepted, it will be checked for completeness, including submission of the required initial evidence. If you do not completely fill out the form or file it without required initial evidence, you will not establish a basis for eligibility and we may deny your application.

Requests for more information or interview.

We may request more information or evidence, or we may request that you appear at a USCIS office for an interview. We may also request that you submit the originals of any copy. We will return these originals when they are no longer required.

Interview.

After you file your application, you may be notified to appear at a USCIS office to answer questions about the application. You will be required to answer these questions under oath or affirmation. You must bring your Arrival-Departure Record (Form I-94) and any passport or official travel document you have to the interview.

Decision.

You will be notified in writing of the decision on your application.

Selective Service Registration.

If you are a male at least 18 years old, but not yet 26 years old, and required according to the Military Selective Service Act to register with the Selective Service System, USCIS will help you register.

When your signed application is filed and accepted by USCIS, we will transmit to the Selective Service System your name, current address, Social Security number, date of birth and the date you filed the application. This action will enable the Selective Service System to record your registration as of the filing date of your application.

If USCIS does not accept your application and, if still so required, you are responsible to register with the Selective Service System by using other means, provided you are under 26 years of age. If you have already registered, the Selective Service System will check its records to avoid any duplication.
(NOTE: Men 18 through 25 years old who are applying for student financial aid, government employment or job training benefits should register directly with the Selective Service System or such benefits may be denied. Men can register at a local post office or on the Internet at http://www.sss.gov).

      If you are an H, L, V, or K3/K4 nonimmigrant who continues to maintain his or her status, you may travel on a valid H, L, V or K3/K4 visa without obtaining advance parole.

   B. Refugees and Asylees:

      If you are applying for adjustment of status one year after you were admitted as a refugee or one year after you were granted asylum, you may travel outside the United States on your valid refugee travel document, if you have one, without the need to obtain advance parole.

2. Warning:

Travel outside the United States may trigger the three and ten year bar to admission under section 212(a)(9)(B)(i) of the Act for adjustment applicants, but not registry applicants. This ground of inadmissibility is triggered if you were unlawfully present in the United States (i.e., you remained in the United States beyond the period of authorized stay) for more than 180 days before you applied for adjustment of status and you travel outside of the United States while your adjustment of status application is pending.

NOTE: Only unlawful presence that was accrued on or after April 1, 1997, counts towards the three and ten year bar under section 212(a)(9)(B)(i) of the Act.

If you become inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(B)(i) of the Act while your adjustment of status application is pending, you will need a waiver of inadmissibility under section 212(a) (9)(B)(v) of the Act before your adjustment of status application can be approved. This waiver, however, is granted on a case-by-case basis and in the exercise of discretion. It requires a showing of extreme hardship to your United States citizen or lawful permanent resident spouse or parent, unless you are a refugee or asylee. For refugees and asylees, the waiver may be granted for humanitarian reasons, to assure family unity or if it is otherwise in the public interest.

If you knowingly and willfully falsify or conceal a material fact or submit a false document with this Form I-485, we will deny the Form I-485 and may deny any other immigration benefit.

In addition, you will face severe penalties provided by law and may be subject to criminal prosecution.

We ask for the information on this form, and associated evidence, to determine if you have established eligibility for the immigration benefit for which you are filing. Our legal right to ask for this information can be found in the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended. We may provide this information to other government agencies. Failure to provide this information, and any requested evidence, may delay a final decision or result in denial of your Form I-485.

DOCUMENTS REQUIRED FOR COMPUTATION OF AGE Note: The alien retains the same CSPA age throughout the pendency of the case and must continue to satisfy the criteria for “child.” i.e., unmarried.
- the alien’s date of birth;
- the immigrant visa category;

- whether the petitioner naturalized and if so, the date of naturalization;
- the alien’s marital status and, if ever married, the dates of marriage and dates of divorces;
- the date the petition was filed;
- the date the petition was approved;
- the date the priority date became current;
- the alien’s age on the date that a visa became available (i.e., age on date of petition approval or on date priority date became current, whichever is later);
- the date the alien submitted the DS-230 Part 1 (or, in following to join adjustment cases, the date the adjusting principal filed the I-824);
- the date(s) the principal and relevant derivative alien applied for the IV;
- the outcome of any IV applications made prior to the CSPA’s effective date (if any).
Application of Section 212(a)(9) of the Act

Set forth below is a 4-step procedure for determining whether section 212(a)(9) of the Act applies. It is important to remember that, where 212(a)(9) applies, all three subsections - (A), (B) and (C) - might provide separate bars to reentry in any given case.

Step 1: Determine whether section 212(a)(9) applies.

Has the alien previously departed the US?

If not, 212(a)(9) does not apply.

If so, go to step 2. [Section 212(a)(9) applies to aliens who have previously physically departed the US and are now either seeking admission, or have reentered (or attempted to reenter) without inspection.

Step 2: Determine whether section 212(a)(9)(A) applies.

Did the alien’s previous departure occur after the issuance of a removal or deportation order?

If not, (A) does not apply. Go to step 4. [Section 212(a)(9)(A) only applies to aliens who were ordered removed or who departed the US while an order of removal was outstanding.]

If so, go to step 3.

Step 3: Determine whether section 212(a)(9)(A)(i) OR (ii) applies. (Only one will apply)

Was the prior order issued to the alien when he was an arriving alien?

If so, 212(a)(9)(A)(i) applies. The alien is inadmissible for 5 years.

If not, 212(a)(9)(A)(ii) applies. The alien is inadmissible for 10 years.

Except: Under section 212(a)(9)(A)(iii), the AG may consent in advance to the alien applying for readmission.

1 From Office of Immigration Litigation Training Materials.

Was alien unlawfully present [prior to a departure from the US] for more than 180 days, but less than 1 year?
If so, (B)(i) applies - the alien is inadmissible for 3 years.

Was alien unlawfully present for more than 1 year?
If so, (B)(ii) applies - the alien is inadmissible for 10 years.

Except: The AG may waive inadmissibility under 212(a)(9)(B) in the case of an immigrant who can show extreme hardship to USC/LPR spouse or parent.

Has the alien attempted to reenter or entered the US unlawfully AFTER having been (1) unlawfully present in the US for more than 1 year OR (2) ordered removed.
If so, section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) applies - the alien is inadmissible.

Except: An alien who is inadmissible under 212(a)(9)(C) may apply for a waiver IF he is seeking admission more than 10 years after last departure from the US and AG consents to re-application.

Waiver: under certain circumstances, section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) can waived in the case of an alien who is a VAWA self-petitioner.
A. STATUTORY NUMBERS

1. This bulletin summarizes the availability of immigrant numbers during April. Consular officers are required to report to the Department of State documentarily qualified applicants for numerically limited visas; the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services in the Department of Homeland Security reports applicants for adjustment of status. Allocations were made, to the extent possible under the numerical limitations, for the demand received by March 11th in the chronological order of the reported priority dates. If the demand could not be satisfied within the statutory or regulatory limits, the category or foreign state in which demand was excessive was deemed oversubscribed. The cut-off date for an oversubscribed category is the priority date of the first applicant who could not be reached within the numerical limits. Only applicants who have a priority date earlier than the cut-off date may be allotted a number. Immediately that it becomes necessary during the monthly allocation process to retrogress a cut-off date, supplemental requests for numbers will be honored only if the priority date falls within the new cut-off date.

2. Section 201 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) sets an annual minimum family-sponsored preference limit of 226,000. The worldwide level for annual employment-based preference immigrants is at least 140,000. Section 202 prescribes that the per-country limit for preference immigrants is set at 7% of the total annual family-sponsored and employment-based preference limits, i.e., 25,620. The dependent area limit is set at 2%, or 7,320.

3. Section 203 of the INA prescribes preference classes for allotment of immigrant visas as follows:

FAMILY-SPONSORED PREFERENCES

First: Unmarried Sons and Daughters of Citizens: 23,400 plus any numbers not required for fourth preference.

Second: Spouses and Children, and Unmarried Sons and Daughters of Permanent Residents: 114,200, plus the number (if any) by which the worldwide family preference level exceeds 226,000, and any unused first preference numbers:

A. Spouses and Children: 77% of the overall second preference limitation, of which 75% are exempt from the per-country limit;

B. Unmarried Sons and Daughters (21 years of age or older): 23% of the overall second preference limitation.

Third: Married Sons and Daughters of Citizens: 23,400, plus any numbers not required by first and second preferences.

Fourth: Brothers and Sisters of Adult Citizens: 65,000, plus any numbers not required by first three preferences.

EMPLOYMENT-BASED PREFERENCES

First: Priority Workers: 28.6% of the worldwide employment-based preference level, plus any numbers not required for fourth and fifth preferences.

Second: Members of the Professions Holding Advanced Degrees or Persons of Exceptional Ability: 28.6% of the worldwide employment-based preference level, plus any numbers not required by first preference.

Third: Skilled Workers, Professionals, and Other Workers: 28.6% of the worldwide level, plus any numbers not required by first and second preferences, not more than 10,000 of which to "Other Workers".

Fourth: Certain Special Immigrants: 7.1% of the worldwide level.

Fifth: Employment Creation: 7.1% of the worldwide level, not less than 3,000 of which reserved for investors in a targeted rural or high-unemployment area, and 3,000 set aside for investors in regional centers by Sec. 610 of P.L. 102-395.

4. INA Section 203(e) provides that family-sponsored and employment-based preference visas be issued to eligible immigrants in the order in which a petition in behalf of each has been filed. Section 203(d) provides that spouses and children of preference immigrants are entitled to the same status, and the same order of consideration, if accompanying or following to join the principal. The visa prorating provisions of Section 202(e) apply to allocations for a foreign state or dependent area when visa demand exceeds the per-country limit. These provisions apply at present to the following oversubscribed chargeability areas: CHINA-mainland born, INDIA, MEXICO, and PHILIPPINES.

5. On the chart below, the listing of a date for any class indicates that the class is oversubscribed (see paragraph 1); "C" means current, i.e., numbers are available for all qualified applicants; and "U" means unavailable, i.e., no numbers are available. (NOTE: Numbers are available only for applicants whose priority date is earlier than the cut-off date listed below.)

The Department of State has available a recorded message with visa availability information which can be heard at: (area code 202) 683-1541. This recording will be updated in the middle of each month with information on cut-off dates for the following month.

Employment Third Preference Other Workers Category: Section 203(e) of the NACARA, as amended by Section 1(e) of Pub. L. 105-139, provides that once the Employment Third Preference Other Worker (EW) cut-off date has reached the priority date of the latest EW petition approved prior to November 19, 1997, the 10,000 EW numbers available for a fiscal year are to be reduced by up to 5,000 annually beginning in the following fiscal year. This reduction is to be made for as long as necessary to offset adjustments under the NACARA program. Since the EW cut-off date reached November 19, 1997 during Fiscal Year 2001, the reduction in the EW annual limit to 5,000 began in Fiscal Year 2002.

B. DIVERSITY IMMIGRANT (DV) CATEGORY

Section 203(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act provides a maximum of up to 55,000 immigrant visas each fiscal year to permit immigration opportunities for persons from countries other than the principal sources of current immigration to the United States. The Nicaraguan and Central American Relief Act (NACARA) passed by Congress in November 1987 stipulates that beginning with DV-99, and for as long as necessary, up to 5,000 of the 55,000 annually-allocated diversity visas will be made available for use under the NACARA program. This reduction has resulted in the DV-2008 annual limit being reduced to 50,000. DV visas are divided among six geographic regions. No one country can receive more than seven percent of the available diversity visas in any one year.

For April, immigrant numbers in the DV category are available to qualified DV-2008 applicants chargeable to all regions/eligible countries as follows. When an allocation cut-off number is shown, visas are available only for applicants with DV regional lottery rank numbers BELOW the specified allocation cut-off number:

Entitlement to immigrant status in the DV category lasts only through the end of the fiscal (visa) year for which the applicant is selected in the lottery. The year of entitlement for all applicants registered for the DV-2008 program ends as of September 30, 2008. DV visas may not be issued to DV-2008 applicants after that date. Similarly, spouses and children accompanying or following to join DV-2008 principals are only entitled to derivative DV status until September 30, 2008. DV visa availability through the very end of FY-2008 cannot be taken for granted. Numbers could be exhausted prior to September 30.

D. INDIA EMPLOYMENT SECOND PREFERENCE VISA AVAILABILITY

Section 202(a)(5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act provides that if total demand will be insufficient to use all available numbers in a particular Employment preference category in a calendar quarter, then the unused numbers may be made available without regard to the annual “per-country” limit. It has been determined that based on the current level of demand being received, primarily by Citizenship and Immigration Services Offices, there would be otherwise unused numbers in the Employment Second preference category. As a result, numbers have once again become available to the India Employment Second preference category. The rate of number use in the Employment Second preference category will continue to be monitored, and it may be necessary to make adjustments should the level of demand increase substantially.

E. SI CATEGORY VISA AVAILABILITY FOR IRAQI AND AFGHANI TRANSLATORS

The National Visa Center has already scheduled 485 Special Immigrant Translator cases for interview in FY-2008. Of these, 332 SIWs have been issued to principal applicants and there are another 170 cases scheduled for March. Given the number of cases scheduled, along with the 221(g) cases still pending, it is likely that the FY-2008 numerical limitation of 500 visas in this category will soon be reached.

Immigration Law in Motion--The Changing Landscape of Motions for Continuance, Change of Venue, Reopening, Remand, and Reconsideration Before the Immigration Judges, the Board of Immigration Appeals, and the Federal Circuit Courts

by

Anne J. Greer and Teresa L. Donovan [FN1].

Motions serve as pivotal tools of the immigration practitioner's trade. This is proving increasingly true in today's immigration practice. In the past, when immigration law presented a quieter front, the variety and volume of motions were more circumscribed. Today, skillful motions practice assumes an expanded and increasingly important role in response to frequent statutory, regulatory, and process change, as well as the growing body of administrative and judicial precedent addressing motions.

When properly deployed, motions contribute to achieving the adjudicatory objectives of fairness to the parties and efficiency of process. The practitioner should aim to meet these goals by addressing the requisite legal standards as set forth by the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act) and regulations, [FN1] administrative guidance, [FN2] and case law. Vital procedural guidance regarding filing requirements for various motions can also be found in the practice manual for the Board of Immigration Appeals (the Board, or BIA) and individual immigration court operating procedures, which are available online at www.usdoj.gov/oir, [FN3] The Office of the Chief Immigration Judge (OCI) is developing a nationwide practice manual pursuant to an August 2006 directive from the former Attorney General. [FN4] It is critical that the movant carefully tailor the request to these requirements. In addition to following the "recipe" for a particular motion, the movant must file it in the proper forum, i.e., the immigration court or the Board. [FN5] Further, given that judicial review of a Board's administrative appellate decision occurs in the federal circuit in which the immigration judge concluded the removal proceeding, relevant federal circuit law should be consulted. [FN6] This is particularly significant because the circuit courts employ different analyses in ascertaining the circumstances under which they retain subject matter jurisdiction to review the denial of these motions by immigration judges and the Board in light of statutory changes to judicial review of immigration matters enacted in 1996 and 2005. Understanding these nuances is important in preparing the motion initially to preserve judicial review by framing arguments appropriately as warranted by the facts.

This Briefing will examine the evolution of specific, discretionary motions before the immigration court, the Board, and the Federal Circuit Courts of Appeal; i.e., motions for continuance, change of venue, reopening, remand, and reconsideration. Each motion will be addressed in terms of history, applicable procedural and substantive requirements, administrative appellate review before the Board, and judicial review in the circuit courts.

SPECIFIC MOTIONS BEFORE THE IMMIGRATION JUDGE AND THE BOARD

Motions for Continuance

Authority. The Act does not contain specific statutory authority for the adjudication of motions for continuances. Some courts have recognized an implicit authority in the section of the Act authorizing immigration judges to "conduct proceedings for deciding the inadmissibility or deportability of an alien." [FN7] In this view, the implicit statutory authority is implemented by the regulation governing continuances. [FN8] cause she did not receive certain "written material" relating to the case, which she intended to use as evidence, until one day before the hearing. [FN21] She next asserted that she had scheduled a meeting with an employee of a translating service about "some pertinent information regarding the hearing as to witnesses and allegations of fact, etc.," including obtaining translation of a letter written by the alien. [FN22] The translating service employee failed to attend the meeting and counsel did not receive the translated letter. The Board upheld the immigration judge's denial of the continuance request, finding first that the receipt of the "written material" a day in advance of the hearing did not prevent counsel from including it as evidence. Further, the alien could have testified as to the contents of the untranslated letter and other "pertinent information" at the hearing.

While the decision to grant or deny a motion for continuance is within the "sound discretion" of the immigration judge, the exercise of discretion is limited. For example, the alien is entitled to certain procedural protections, including the guarantee of a reasonable opportunity to present evidence on his or her own behalf. [FN23] Further, mere efficiency in terms of completing the case is not a sufficient reason to deny a continuance based on a justifiable request for more time. [FN24] Yet, the avoidance of unreasonably protracted delay can support the denial of a continuance. [FN25]

The good cause standard also applies to the immigration judge when exercising his or her authority to grant a continuance. The immigration judge has a duty not to continue the matter for a period of time longer than reasonably needed to serve the purpose. For example, an immigration judge did not act with good cause by granting a one-year continuance to give the respondent more time to establish rehabilitation in furtherance of an application for discretionary relief. [FN26] Case law from the reviewing circuit court should be consulted for examples of how the immigration judge's evaluation of the good cause standard is reviewed for abuse of discretion. [FN27]

Continuances Pending Adjudication of Ancillary Petitions. In addition to time for preparation, including procuring and assessing evidence, respondents frequently seek continuances for the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to adjudicate a benefits petition that would enable them to apply for relief from removal before the immigration judge; e.g., adjustment of status. [FN28]

Eligibility for adjustment of status requires an alien who has been admitted or paroled into the United States to file an application for adjustment of status establishing that he has an immigrant visa immediately available and is admissible to the United States. The availability of the immigrant visa in many cases depends upon the favorable adjudication by DHS of a visa petition filed by an immediate family member or an employer. This process may take a lengthy period of time and requires different steps, depending on whether the alien is seeking a family-based or employment-based adjustment. Under the Board's decision in Matter of Garcia, the immigration judge may grant a continuance pending the adjudication of the underlying visa petition by DHS. [FN29]

Significant litigation arises over whether an immigration judge or the Board abused discretion in denying a continuance to await the adjudication of an immigrant visa petition. [FN30] Case law from the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals provides useful insight into the circumstances warranting delay of the proceedings to await the outcome of the ancillary adjudication. In Bull v. INS, the respondent's United States citizen wife filed a visa petition on his behalf, which remained pending adjudication at the time of the deportation hearing. [FN31] The immigration judge denied the respondent's request for a continuance to await the outcome of the visa petition adjudication by DHS. Without the approved visa petition, the respondent did not have a visa immediately available, and he had not filed the adjustment application. In addition, the immigration judge concluded the respondent could not present vests with the immigration court system, which consists of over 50 immigration courts nationwide. [FN44] The DHS determines venue in a case when it files the NTA with an immigration court. [FN45] Jurisdiction and venue are distinct. Jurisdiction remains within the immigration court system until the matter is decided by an immigration judge and an appeal is filed. [FN46] Venue may be altered by filing the proper motion.

The immigration judge's authority to rule on a motion to change venue, subsequent to the filing of the NTA by DHS, has long been recognized by case law. In Matter of K-, the Board stated that "the power to rule...for change of venue...lies solely with the hearing officer [now immigration judge]." [FN47] The Board did not elaborate on the source of this power, treating it as an inherent authority belonging to the adjudicator. In Matter of Serem, the Board clarified for purposes of deportation proceedings that, "[m]atters involving procedural due process in a hearing before an immigration judge are under his jurisdiction. Venue is, of course, such a matter." [FN48] In Serem, the Board premised the power to decide venue on the regulation at former 8 C.F.R. § 242.8(a), which granted the immigration judge the authority to take such action as "may be appropriate to the disposition of the case."

In Matter of Wadas, the Board based the immigration judge's authority to adjudicate motions to change venue in exclusion proceedings on former 8 C.F.R. § 236.1, which provided: "...immigration judges shall also exercise the discretion and authority conferred upon the Attorney General by the Act as is appropriate and necessary for the disposition of such cases." [FN49] The judge's authority over venue "was committed to the sound exercise of his discretion." [FN50] The Board determined in Matter of Alphonse [FN51] that the immigration judge's authority over venue did not extend to an alien in Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) detention, reasoning that consideration of parole and detention matters are exclusively within the INS District Director's jurisdiction. [FN52]

In 1987, the regulations were amended to specifically address motions to change venue and confirm the immigration judges' authority to adjudicate them, irrespective of whether the alien was detained, or was in exclusion or deportation proceedings. [FN53] The new venue regulation read: "The Immigration Judge, for good cause, may change venue on motion by one of the parties, or upon his or her own authority after the charging document has been filed with the Office of the Chief Immigration Judge." [FN54] According to the rule's supplementary information, the rule was designed to provide consistency, clarity, and fairness, "[making] uniform the Immigration Judge's authority to change venue in all proceedings." [FN55]

In 1992, the regulations were amended to eliminate the immigration judges' sua sponte authority to grant a change of venue. [FN56] The amended regulation at former 8 C.F.R. § 3.20(b) provided: "The Immigration Judge, for good cause, may change venue only upon motion by one of the parties, after the charging document has been filed with the Office of the Chief Immigration Judge." The current regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 1003.20(b) remains largely unchanged. Thus, the immigration judge has jurisdiction to rule on a motion to change venue filed by either party, but has no authority to order a change of venue on his or her own motion. [FN57]

Good Cause standard. Matter of Rahman remains the most widely cited case addressing what constitutes "good cause" for purposes of requesting a change of venue. [FN58] Rahman cautions careful consideration of the relevant factors and requires thoughtful and thorough presentation of valid reasons supporting a request for a change of venue. Good cause is determined by balancing factors relevant to the venue issue, including the respondent's residence, location of respondent's counsel, location and availability of witnesses and evidence, administrative convenience, and expeditious treatment of the case. In Rahman, the respondent requested a change of venue from the immigration judge based
The advent of televideo conferencing, telephonic hearings, and administrative control courts results in cross-jurisdictional hearing scenarios. An immigration judge may be sitting in Falls Church, Virginia, and appearing by televideo at the Los Angeles Immigration Court, where the parties and the interpreter are present. Because the Act vests venue for circuit court judicial review in the circuit where the immigration judge completed proceedings, the question arises whether the immigration judge in Virginia hearing a case in California should apply the law of the Fourth or Ninth Circuit Court.

Several courts have commented on the lack of clarity generated by the differing locations of the parties and the immigration judges. [FN70] In response, the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR) issued a proposed rule to amend 8 C.F.R. §§ 1003.14(a) and 1003.20(a) clarifying that "venue shall lie at the place of the hearing as identified on the charging document or initial hearing notice, unless an immigration judge has granted a change of venue to a different location." [FN71] The proposed regulation accords with Interim Operating Policies and Procedures Memorandum No. 04-06, Hearings Conducted through Telephone and Video Conference (OPPM 04-06). [FN72] Under the proposed rule, the designated hearing location controls for law of the circuit purposes even if an immigration judge is conducting the hearing by video conference in an alternative location or if the case records are filed with an administrative control court in a different city.

Motions to Reopen Before the Immigration Courts and the Board [FN73]

Authority. A motion to reopen immigration proceedings can be filed by either party and is based on new facts or circumstances arising after the issuance of a final administrative order. [FN74] Since the 1940s, federal regulations have provided that a motion to reopen "shall state the new facts to be proven at a hearing to be held if the motion is granted, and shall be supported by affidavits or other evidentiary material." [FN75]

Motions to reopen immigration proceedings have long been disfavored because, like petitions for rehearing and motions for a new trial based on newly discovered evidence in the federal courts, there is a public interest in bringing finality to proceedings. [FN76] The United States Supreme Court has found that this "is especially true in a deportation proceeding, where, as a general matter, every delay works to the advantage of the deportable alien who wishes merely to remain in the United States." [FN77]

In 1990, because of perceived abuses in the filing of motions to reopen or reconsider immigration proceedings, Congress directed the Attorney General to issue regulations setting time and number limitations on motions. [FN78] Congress stated that "[U]nless the Attorney General finds reasonable evidence to the contrary, the regulations should state that such motions be made within 20 days of the date of the final determination in the proceeding and that such motions be limited to one motion to reopen and one motion to reconsider." [FN79] As directed, the Justice Department's initial proposed regulations set a 20-day time limit on motions to reopen and reconsider and a numerical limit of one. [FN80] After public comment, the Attorney General promulgated revised final regulations effective July 1, 1996, extending the 20-day time limit to a 30-day limit for motions to reconsider and a 90-day limit for motions to reopen. [FN81] The regulations incorporated the number limit so that an alien could file only one motion to reopen and one motion to reconsider. [FN82] Five months later, Congress codified these time and number restrictions on motions to reopen and motions to reconsider; this is the current law. [FN83]

Procedural Requirements. The regulatory provisions governing motions to reopen are framed in the negative, i.e., "a motion shall not be granted" unless a certain condition is met. The regulations do not require reopening in any particular case. [FN84] Thus, the regulations governing motions to tion. [FN101] Lin unlawfully reentered the United States in 1999, and, in 2004, filed a motion to reopen his original removal hearing before the immigration judge. The immigration judge denied the motion based on a lack of jurisdiction. The Board affirmed the immigration judge's decision. The Board found that Lin's prior removal order was subject to reinstatement pursuant to § 241(a)(5) of the Act and that Lin was barred from seeking any benefit under the Act pursuant to § 208(d)(6) of the Act, because he had filed a frivolous asylum application. It appears that the motion was not denied based on Lin's departure from the United States nor on the untimeliness of the motion.

The government invoked the regulatory bar on post-departure motions to reopen in response to Lin's petition for review filed with the Ninth Circuit. The Ninth Circuit found, inter alia, that regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 1003.23(b)(1) do not always preclude an alien who has been removed from filing a motion to reopen. Looking at the regulation's first sentence, the court observed that it is phrased in the present tense. [FN102] Therefore, when Lin departed the country in 1997, he was not the subject of proceedings because his proceedings were complete and, consequently, he could file a motion to reopen despite his departure from this country.

In William v. Gonzales, the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals invalidated this regulatory bar on post-departure motions to reopen. [FN103] In that case, William, a lawful permanent resident, was removed from the United States in July 2005 due to his 1997 conviction for a crime involving moral turpitude. Within five months of his departure, William's 1997 conviction was vacated and he sought reopening before the Board. The Board denied the motion pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 1003.2(d) because William had departed the United States. The Fourth Circuit agreed with William that federal regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 1003.2(d) (barring post-departure motions to reopen) conflict with § 240(c)(7)(A) of the Act (authorizing an alien to file one motion to reopen proceedings) because the Act has no requirement that only aliens who are present in the United States may file a motion to reopen. The court invalidated the regulation and remanded the case to the Board. In his strong dissent, Chief Justice Williams asserted that he was unable "to conclude that Congress has clearly signaled its intention to repeal the departure bar at 8 C.F.R. § 1003.2(d)." [FN104]

Time and Number Limitations. An alien may file only one motion to reopen, whether before the immigration judge or the Board, and the motion must be filed within 90 days of the date of the entry of the final administrative order in the case. [FN105] These time and number limitations do not apply to a DHS motion to reopen removal proceedings filed before the immigration judge or the Board. [FN106] For purposes of calculating the motions deadline, the "entry" of a final administrative order refers "to the date that a designated adjudicator renders a binding decision." [FN107] The 90-day time limit cannot be extended. The filing of a petition for review in federal circuit court does not extend the time limit for filing a motion to reopen. [FN108] A motion is deemed filed when received at the immigration court or the Board. [FN109]

The time and number limitations on motions to reopen are not absolute. There are four narrow exceptions to these time and number restrictions on motions to reopen. [FN110] However, even if a motion falls within one of these exceptions, the motion must still meet the other general motions requirements.

The first exception to the time and number limitations on motions to reopen arises in the context of in absentia removal, deportation, and exclusion hearings where an alien is ordered removed, deported, or excluded in his absence due to his failure to appear at a scheduled hearing. The regulations and the Act provide different time limits on motions to reopen and rescind orders entered in absentia. An alien who fails to attend a scheduled hearing due to exceptional circumstances must file a motion to reopen and rescind the in absentia order within 180 days after the date of the order of removal. An alien
Motions to Reopen and Voluntary Departure

Another important consideration in motions practice is the interplay between the statutory and regulatory provisions governing voluntary departure and those governing motions to reopen. [FN126] As stated, with few exceptions, an alien must file a motion to reopen within 90 days of the issuance of a final administrative order. The statutory deadlines for voluntarily departing the United States are different from the deadlines for filing motions to reopen.

Rather than entering a removal order, an immigration judge may grant an alien a period of time in which to voluntarily depart the country. [FN127] An alien who is granted voluntary departure prior to the completion of removal proceedings may be granted a voluntary departure period up to 120 days. [FN128] An alien who is granted voluntary departure at the conclusion of proceedings may be granted up to 60 days in which to voluntarily depart. [FN129] An alien who does not depart the United States within the authorized period of voluntary departure is ineligible for cancellation of removal, adjustment of status, and registry for a 10-year period unless the alien can establish exceptional circumstances for his failure to depart. [FN130]

Thus, the issue is whether the timely filing of a motion to reopen tolls the voluntary departure period. Stated differently, the question is whether the filing of a motion to reopen stays the voluntary departure period while the Board adjudicates the motion to reopen. To date, the Board has not issued a precedent decision on this precise issue under the current statutory provisions. [FN131]

In practice, it is nearly impossible for an immigration judge or the Board to adjudicate a motion to reopen within the 60- or 120-day period of voluntary departure. Thus, an alien who files a timely motion to reopen to apply for cancellation, adjustment of status, or registry will most likely become ineligible for such relief under § 240B(d) of the Act if he waits in this country while the motion is adjudicated. [FN132] Moreover, if the alien departs the country while the motion is pending, the motion is automatically withdrawn. [FN133] Although aliens who accept voluntary departure must be given notice of the consequences of their failure to timely depart the United States, [FN134] the “joint effect of these provisions is practically to foreclose the availability of motions to reopen in most cases where the alien has received voluntary departure.” [FN135]

There is a circuit court split on whether a motion to reopen filed within the voluntary departure period tolls the voluntary departure period. Four circuits have held that the timely filing of a motion to reopen tolls the voluntary departure period until the Board rules on the motion. [FN136] In order to give effect to these competing statutory provisions, these courts have held that a timely filed motion to reopen will toll the voluntary departure period. On the other hand, the First, Fourth, and Fifth Circuits have held that the timely filing of a motion to reopen does not toll the voluntary departure period. [FN137]

The United States Supreme Court recently granted a petition for a writ of certiorari to address this very issue; that is, “whether the filing of a motion to reopen removal proceedings automatically tolls the period within which an alien must depart the United States under an order granting voluntary departure.” [FN138]

Substantive Requirements. Nearly 20 years ago, the United States Supreme Court articulated the “three independent grounds” for the immigration judge or the Board to deny a motion to reopen. [FN139] A motion to reopen can be properly denied if: (1) the alien fails to establish prima facie eligibility for the relief sought; (2) the alien fails to support the motion with previously unavailable evidence, or fails to explain his failure to assert his claim at the hearing; or (3) the alien, despite being eligible, is not entitled to the discretionary grant of relief. [FN140] These grounds were recently reiterated by the Board. [FN141] These often cited reas-arises, careful attention must be paid to the circuit law to determine the nature and extent of the evidence required to support a motion to reopen premised on an ineffective assistance of counsel claim. [FN153]

The Act provides that aliens may be represented in removal hearings by counsel of their choosing at no expense to the government. [FN154] An alien's right to competent counsel derives not from a specific right to counsel, but from the Fifth Amendment right to due process and a fundamentally fair immigration hearing. [FN155] The Board has found that "ineffective assistance of counsel is a denial of due process only if the proceedings were so fundamentally unfair that the alien was prevented from reasonably presenting his or her case." [FN156]

The Board has held that to successfully raise an ineffective assistance of counsel claim, an alien must, first, comply with the three procedural requirements set forth in Matter of Lozada, and, second, demonstrate that his or her case was prejudiced as a result of counsel’s conduct. [FN157] The Board held in Matter of Lozada that an alien making an ineffective assistance claim must: (1) present an affidavit setting forth in detail the agreement with former counsel and representations by counsel in this regard; (2) inform counsel of allegations of ineffective conduct and give counsel the opportunity to respond; and (3) file a bar complaint or explain the reasons for failing to do so. [FN158]

While the circuit courts have uniformly adopted the Board's three-prong Lozada test, the courts do not always require strict compliance with the requirements. A review of case law in the various circuits reveals that each has its own standard for Lozada compliance. For example, the Ninth Circuit has held that where counsel's ineffectiveness is obvious and undisputed on the face of the record, the alien need not comply with the Lozada requirements. [FN159]

Similarly, while the circuit courts have uniformly adopted the Board's requirement that the alien establish that counsel's conduct prejudiced the case, the courts measure or describe prejudice differently. For example, the Sixth Circuit sets a high prejudice standard while the Ninth Circuit sets a lower standard, with the Third Circuit's prima facie standard falling in the middle. To establish an ineffective assistance of counsel claim in the Sixth Circuit, an alien must establish that "counsel prejudiced him or denied him fundamental fairness in order to prove that he has suffered a denial of due process." [FN160] To establish prejudice the alien must show that the outcome of the case would have been different but for counsel's error. Furthermore, an alien has no right to effective assistance of counsel in requesting a discretionary waiver of removal from the Attorney General because the inability to receive such relief does not amount to "deprivation of a liberty interest." [FN161]

The legal standard for establishing prejudice in the Third Circuit requires an alien to show a "reasonable likelihood" or "reasonable probability" that the result would have been different absent counsel's errors. Stated differently, the alien must show a reasonable likelihood that the outcome would have been different had the error not occurred. [FN162] Thus, the Third Circuit appears to require that an alien make a prima facie showing of prejudice to obtain reopening. In Fadiga v. Attorney General, the Third Circuit determined that the Board employed an overly rigorous prejudice standard by requiring the alien to establish by a preponderance of the evidence eligibility for the relief sought. [FN163]

The Ninth Circuit employs a lower prejudice standard than that set by the Sixth and Third Circuits. The Ninth Circuit has held that to establish prejudice an alien must show that counsel's inadequate performance may have affected the outcome of the proceedings. The court explained that this is a lower standard than a prima facie standard. [FN164] The Ninth Circuit has also determined that prejudice is presumed where counsel's error deprives the alien of an opportunity to appeal.
Matter of X-G-W, [FN183] the Board found that a 1996 amendment to the "refugee" definition constituted a significant change to the asylum law that justified the Board's consideration of otherwise untimely motions to reopen by aliens who sought to apply or reapply for asylum based on the change in the law. [FN186]

On the other hand, in Matter of G-D, [FN187] an alien asked the Board to reopen and reconsider proceedings on its own motion based on the Board's intervening decision in Matter of O-Z & I-Z. [FN188] The Board found that its decision in O-Z & I-Z did not constitute a fundamental change in the law, but rather applied existing law to the facts of the case. At most, it could be considered an "incremental development in the law, not a departure from established principles." [FN189]

Motions to Remand Filed with the Board

A motion to reopen or reconsider which is filed before the Board during the pendency of an appeal constitutes a motion to remand. Such a motion may be adjudicated by the Board with the appeal. [FN190] Whether the motion to remand is filed for the purpose of reopening or reconsideration, it must meet the standard motions requirements, except the time and numerical restrictions. For example, an alien who files a motion to remand while his appeal is pending to afford him the opportunity to apply for adjustment of status under § 245(a) of the Act [8 U.S.C.A. § 1255(a)] would need to establish prima facie eligibility for relief and that the motion should be granted in the exercise of discretion. As with motions to reopen, a party filing a motion to remand "to pursue relief bears a 'heavy burden' of proving that if proceedings before the immigration judge were reopened, with all the attendant delays, the new evidence would likely change the result of the case." [FN191]

In certain circumstances, a motion to remand will be subject to the time and number limits on a motion to reopen. For example, a motion to remand filed during the pendency of an appeal of an immigration judge’s denial of an untimely motion to reopen filed after the issuance of a final administrative order is subject to the time and number limits on motions to reopen. [FN192]

In adjudicating an appeal, the Board may remand on its own motion without a formal request by the parties. For example, when the Board sustains an alien’s appeal and finds the alien ineligible for some form of relief from removal (such as adjustment or withholding of removal), it will remand the case to the immigration judge for background checks and entry of an order pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 1003.47(h); or, the Board may determine that further fact-finding is necessary to adjudicate the appeal in which case it must remand the case to the immigration judge. [FN193]

An issue that often arises in the context of remanded proceedings, is the nature and extent of the immigration judge’s jurisdiction over the case. In general, when the Board remands the record of proceeding to the immigration judge, it divests itself of jurisdiction, giving the immigration judge jurisdiction to consider all issues unless the Board specifically limited the scope of the remanded proceedings. [FN194] The Board has held that when the record is remanded to the immigration judge for background checks and entry of an order pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 1003.47(h), the immigration judge may not reconsider the Board’s prior decision, but the immigration judge “reserves jurisdiction over the proceedings” and may consider whether newly proffered evidence supports reopening of the proceedings. [FN195]

Motions to Reconsider Before the Immigration Courts and the Board

Authority. A motion to reconsider “shall specify the errors of fact and law” in the prior immigration judge or Board decision and “shall be supported by pertinent authority.” [FN196] Historically, the Justice Department and Congress have paired motions to reopen and motions to reconsider so that they have undergone regulatory reform and party may file only one motion to reconsider" with the immigration judge. [FN207] The regulations governing motions filed with the Board provide that "[A] party may file only one motion to reconsider any given decision .... [I]n removal proceedings, an alien may file only one motion to reconsider a decision that the alien is removable from the United States." [FN208]

Substantive Requirements. As stated, a motion to reconsider is based on the assertion that the previous decision is premised on a factual or legal error or that the decision should be reevaluated due to a change in law. A motion to reconsider based on arguments that should have been raised on appeal or simply repeat arguments rejected on appeal will be denied. [FN209] Likewise, motions to reconsider that are insufficiently detailed and based on conclusory statements will be denied. [FN210]

The regulations specifically bar two types of motions to reconsider. First, a party may not file a motion to reconsider before the Board or the immigration judge seeking reconsideration of a decision denying a prior motion to reconsider. [FN211] Second, a “motion to reconsider based solely on an argument that the case should not have been affirmed without opinion by a single Board Member, or by a three-Member panel, is barred.” [FN212]

Last year, in Matter of O-S-G-, the Board denied the respondent’s motion to reconsider because he simply reasserted his asylum eligibility claim and introduced a new legal argument (asserting his eligibility for asylum based on his membership in a particular social group) which he could have presented to the immigration judge and on appeal, but failed to do so. [FN213] In that case, the Board summarized the general filing requirements for motions to reconsider and set forth the proper standard for challenging a decision in which the Board affirmed the immigration judge’s decision without opinion. The Board made a distinction between those motions which are barred by regulation because they are based “solely on the management decision to issue an AWO,” (affirmation without opinion) and those motions which are permitted because they challenge “the underlying reasons for affirmation of the immigration judge’s decision.” [FN214]

Like a motion to reopen, the contents of a motion to reconsider will depend on the reason or purpose for filing the motion. For example, the Board retains jurisdiction over a motion to reconsider its previous decision dismissing an appeal as untimely filed. [FN215] A party asserting that the Board erroneously found an appeal untimely must specify the Board’s error in the prior order and explain why the appeal should be considered timely filed. A party challenging an immigration judge’s determination that the right to appeal was waived may file a motion to reconsider with either the immigration judge or the Board. [FN216] The party making such a motion must demonstrate that the waiver, if made, is invalid because it was not knowing and voluntary.

Motions to reconsider filed before the Board and the immigration judge must disclose whether the final removal order is the subject of judicial proceedings, and, if so, it must detail the judicial posture and status of the case including whether the court has decided the case. [FN217] The motion must also disclose whether the alien is the subject of any criminal proceeding under the Act, and, if so, the status of the proceeding. [FN218]

In an interesting decision analyzing the nature of a motion to reconsider filed in removal proceedings, the Fifth Circuit found that the Board’s decision granting the DHS’ untimely motion to reconsider was in error because the DHS motion to reconsider constituted a collateral attack on the Board’s prior decision which was barred by res judicata. [FN219]

Sua Sponte Reconsideration. As with reopening, the immigration judge and the Board may reconsider removal proceedings on their own motion in exceptional circumstances. [FN220]
Remand, and Reconsideration. Judicial review over discretionary adjudications by immigration judges and the Board is circumscribed by § 242(a)(2)(B) of the Act, which prohibits judicial review of denials of discretionary relief including:

(i) any judgment regarding the granting of relief under § 212(h), 212(i), 240A, 240B, or 245, or

(ii) any other decision or action of the Attorney General or the Secretary of Homeland Security the authority for which is specified under this subchapter to be in the discretion of the Attorney General or the Secretary of Homeland Security, other than the granting of relief under § 208(a) [asylum]. [FN235]

The United States Circuit Courts of Appeal have issued numerous decisions analyzing their jurisdiction over discretionary motions, with some differences of opinion among them over the nature and extent of judicial review preserved. Further, the circuits differ over the analytical framework underlying these determinations. The following discussion addresses these variations.

Motions for Continuance—Subject Matter Jurisdiction. The Circuit Courts analyze their jurisdiction over the denials of continuance under § 242(a)(2)(B)(ii) of the Act, which prohibits judicial review over discretionary determinations, outside of the applications for relief from removal, "specified under this subchapter." [FN236] The circuits are split, with the Eighth, Tenth, and Seventh circuits concluding that review is not available. The majority disagrees, including the First, Second, Third, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, and Eleventh. The Supreme Court recently declined to resolve this question. [FN237]

The Eighth Circuit in Onyinkwa v. Ashcroft first addressed the issue, finding no jurisdiction to review the petitioner's claim that the immigration judge abused his discretion in denying a request for a continuance of the removal proceedings. [FN238] According to Onyinkwa, "whenever a regulation implementing a subchapter II statute confers discretion upon an immigration judge, IIRIRA generally divests courts of jurisdiction to review the exercise of that discretion." [FN239] In this view, immigration judges derive their discretionary authority over continuance motions from the section of the Act authorizing them to conduct removal proceedings, which is contained in subchapter II of the Act. [FN240] The implementing regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 1003.29 governing continuances is within the discretion of the immigration judges and therefore beyond judicial review.

In Onyinkwa, the Eighth Circuit relied on the Sixth Circuit's opinion in CDI Information Services, Inc., v. Reno, to find that it lacked jurisdiction to review the immigration judge's denial of a continuance. [FN241] The Sixth Circuit later opined that the Eighth Circuit "misapplied our precedent" in this regard. [FN242] The Sixth Circuit observed that CDI Information Services involved an application for a visa extension, which the court noted is left to the Attorney General's discretion, not to that of the immigration judges. The Sixth Circuit distinguished this scenario from portions of subchapter II "that leave discretion with [immigration judges] in matters where [immigration judges] are merit decision-makers that are subject to our review." [FN243]

Subsequently, in Grass v. Gonzales, the Eighth Circuit followed Onyinkwa, holding that "we have no jurisdiction to review the [immigration judge's] wholly discretionary denial of Grass's request for a continuance of his removal hearing." [FN244] Recently, in dicta, the Eighth Circuit suggested that "it may be appropriate for our court to revisit this issue en banc. Since Grass, a majority of the circuits have determined that the courts of appeals do have jurisdiction to review an [immigration judge's] discretionary denial of a motion to continue." [FN245]

The Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals agreed with the Eighth Circuit in Yerkovich v. Ashcroft. [FN246] In Yerkovich, the Tenth Circuit observed that it was bound by its decision in Van Dinh v.
migration proceeding is not a decision 'specified under [the relevant] subchapter to be in the discretion of the Attorney General." [FN260] These courts, including the First, Second, Third, Fifth, Ninth, and Eleventh employ similar reasoning to conclude, as stated by the Second Circuit, that "continuances are not even mentioned in the subchapter." [FN261] In this view, since the immigration judges' authority over continuances derives from the regulations, rather than the statute, the adjudication is not encompassed within the ambit of the jurisdiction-stripping provision over discretionary determinations under 242(a)(2)(B)(ii). [FN262] As stated by the Eleventh Circuit in Zafar v. U.S. Att'y. Gen., "[b]ecause denials of motions to continue are not statutorily-proscribed discretionary acts 'specified under this subsection' to the Attorney General, as enumerated in section 1252(a)(2)(B)(ii), we have jurisdiction to review them." [FN263]

Interestingly, the First Circuit initially determined that it lacked jurisdiction to review the denial of a continuance stating that, "[w]e acknowledge the correctness of the government's argument that we have no jurisdiction over whether the denial of a continuance was an abuse of discretion." [FN264] Subsequently, the First Circuit reversed itself on this point, as did the government, to join the majority of circuits, explaining that, "[w]e agree with the government's new position that we have jurisdiction to review a denial of a continuance." [FN265]

The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals reached the same outcome through different reasoning. In Abu-Khaliet v. Gonzales, the Sixth Circuit found that the regulation governing continuances implements an implicit power granted to immigration judges by statute. [FN266] However, the Sixth Circuit differentiated between the authority conferred on the Attorney General and that delegated to the immigration judges by the Attorney General. In this view, judicial review is only prohibited of decisions within subchapter II left to the Attorney General.

Jurisdiction. Unlike the numerous cases addressing jurisdiction over continuances, little circuit court precedent addresses jurisdiction under § 242 of the Act for motions to change venue. The Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, consistent with its approach regarding lack of jurisdiction over motions for continuances, held that it cannot entertain review of the denial of a motion to change venue.

In Ballestros v. Ashcroft, the Tenth Circuit categorized the alien's challenge to the immigration judge's denial of his motion to change venue as completely discretionary and therefore precluded from review by § 242(a)(2)(B)(ii) of the Act. [FN267] The court examined the alien's arguments to determine whether he raised a legal or constitutional issue that would permit review. However, Mr. Ballestros' argument that venue would have been more convenient elsewhere did not present a question of law or a constitutional question.

Presumably, the Seventh and the Eighth Circuits, which also find no jurisdiction over continuance motions, will similarly conclude that motions to change venue are encompassed in the statutory authority to conduct removal proceedings. On the other hand, those circuits finding jurisdiction over continuance motions will likely assume subject matter jurisdiction over motions to change of venue under the rationale that the statute does not provide specific, discretionary authority for their adjudication.

Motions to Reopen—Subject Matter Jurisdiction. The circuits do not consider motions to reopen or remand to constitute nonreviewable discretionary determinations under § 242(a)(2)(B)(ii) of the Act, unless the motion seeks reopening of one of the merits based discretionary proceedings specified in § 242(a)(2)(B)(i) of the Act. [FN268] The two circuits that decline subject matter jurisdiction over continuance denial—the Tenth and the Eighth—do find jurisdiction to entertain motions to reopen.

Shortly after issuing the decision in Yankovich available pursuant to § 242(a)(2)(C) of the Act, jurisdiction to review a motion to reopen of the underlying order is similarly withdrawn. [FN278] Section 242(a)(2)(C) precludes review of aliens ordered removed by reason of having committed any of the offenses covered under the § 212(a)(2) criminal grounds of inadmissibility or the § 237(a)(2) criminal grounds of deportability for aggravated felony, controlled substances, firearms, miscellaneous crimes specified under § 237(a)(2)(D), and two or more crimes involving moral turpitude. There is wide consensus that an alien cannot obtain judicial review of a motion to reopen where the circuit court lacks jurisdiction to review the underlying order of removal. Courts do retain jurisdiction to ascertain whether the criminal conviction fits the Act’s definition of these criminal grounds for immigration purposes. [FN279]

Sua Sponte Motions to Reopen—Subject Matter Jurisdiction. The regulations provide the Board with sua sponte reopening authority, stating that “[t]he Board may at any time reopen or reconsider on its own motion any case in which it has rendered a decision.” [FN280] Most courts have ruled that the Board’s decision whether to exercise this authority is not subject to judicial review, including the First, Second, Third, Fourth Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh. [FN281] These courts agree that decisions over sua sponte reopening of a removal proceeding are committed solely to the Board’s discretion without recourse to judicial review. They observe that the regulatory language does not provide any standards for the Board to exercise its discretion that would serve as a basis for review. However, the Eighth Circuit disagrees with the others to find that the Board’s decision can be reviewed for abuse of discretion. [FN282] The Eighth Circuit assumed jurisdiction over the Board’s sua sponte denial of a motion to reopen on the basis of precedent that addressed a different section of the regulations, but that the majority believed bound the court. [FN283]

Motions to Remand—Subject Matter Jurisdiction. As noted by the Second Circuit, motions to remand are not specifically referenced in the Act or the regulations otherwise discussing motions. [FN284] Thus, arguably, motions to remand are not included as nonreviewable discretionary determinations under § 242(a)(2)(B). In ascertaining subject matter jurisdiction, the circuit courts of appeal apply similar analysis to that of motions to reopen. For example, the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals determined that it had jurisdiction over the denial of an alien’s motion in which he sought a remand for the opportunity to apply for adjustment of status. Here, the denial of the adjustment application itself was not at issue, which would have been precluded by § 242(a)(2)(B)(i). [FN285]

Motions to Reconsider—Subject Matter Jurisdiction. As with motions to reopen, circuit courts of appeal take jurisdiction over motions to reconsider unless reconsideration is sought of a merits decision on a discretionary application for relief encompassed under § 242(a)(2)(B)(i). For example, review of the discretionary denial to reconsider the adverse decision in an asylum case remains available and is not restricted by the general prohibition on discretionary determinations under § 242(a)(2)(B)(ii). [FN286] Motions to reconsider, like motions to reopen, are found to be implicitly included in the authority to review final orders of removal under § 242(a)(1) of the Act. [FN287] The Act explicitly provides for judicial review of motions to reconsider and motions to reopen under § 242(b)(6), which states: “When a petitioner seeks review of an order under this section, any review sought of a motion to reopen or reconsider the order shall be consolidated with the review of the order.” [FN288] Motions to reconsider, while referenced in the statute, are discussed in discretionary terms by regulation at 8 C.F.R. §§ 1003.23(b)(iv) and 1003.2(a). However, as with motions to reopen, if reconsideration is sought of a removal order based on a criminal conviction for which judicial review is unavailable under § 242(a)(2)(C), the court cannot entertain the appeal of the motion. [FN289] not make issue exhaustion a statutory jurisdictional requirement. [FN304] In the Second Circuit's view, the exhaustion requirement is mandatory rather than jurisdictional in nature, and therefore subject to waiver by the government's failure to object. Thus, in the Second Circuit, the failure of the alien to exhaust an issue before the Board may be waived if the government does not challenge it before the circuit court.

Abuse of Discretion Standard of Review Applied When Circuit Courts Find Jurisdiction. Those courts finding jurisdiction to review denials of discretionary motions following the enactment of IIRIRA continue to apply the abuse of discretion standard which had been used before the statute's enactment. As frequently stated, "[w]hether to grant a motion to continue deportation proceedings is within the sound discretion of the immigration judge and is reviewed for abuse of discretion only." [FN305] Courts have articulated this standard as requiring reversal unless the decision "was made without a rational explanation, it inexplicably departed from established policies, or it rested on an impermissible basis, e.g., invidious discrimination against a particular race or group." [FN306] An alternative articulation explains that an immigration judge would abuse his or her discretion if the decision was based on an error of law or fact, or the decision "cannot be located within the range of permissible decisions." [FN307]

Judicial Review Under the REAL ID Act of 2005. Under amendments enacted by the REAL ID Act of 2005, circuit courts retain jurisdiction to review "constitutional claims or questions of law raised upon a petition for review...", irrespective of whether jurisdiction exists to determine whether an immigration judge abused his discretion in denying a motion or whether the removal order is based on a criminal conviction under §§ 242(a)(2)(B) and (C) of the Act. [FN308] For example, whether the immigration judge's denial of a continuance violated statutory rights under the Act or the constitutional right to due process "are questions of law that we review de novo, but with deference to the agency's reasonable interpretations of the [Act]." [FN309]

Courts resist attempts to characterize factual challenges as legal or due process issues merely to obtain jurisdiction where it might otherwise be precluded. As stated by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, "[r]ecasting challenges to factual or discretionary determinations as due process or other constitutional claims is clearly insufficient to give this Court jurisdiction..." [FN310] On the other hand, Courts will find constitutional violations where they deem warranted. For example, recent cases from the Ninth and Seventh Circuits provide examples of where the denial of continuance requests were found to prejudicially violate the aliens' right to counsel.

In Hernandez-Gil v. Gonzales, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals found that the immigration judge violated the respondent's right to counsel in denying the respondent's request for more time to obtain representation. [FN311] In Hernandez-Gil, respondent's counsel failed to appear at the merits hearing on the application for cancellation of removal. Although the respondent had 16 months between his initial removal hearing to meet with counsel and did not do so, the respondent asked for additional time to meet with an attorney and stated that he was not prepared to go forward on his own. The court, in reversing the Board, emphasized that the respondent had not waived his statutory right to counsel. Information in the record indicated that counsel was in another courtroom attending to a different matter, and thus, presumed by the court to be accessible.

The Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals in Gjoci v. Gonzales, held that an immigration judge's denial of an alien's request for continuance to obtain new counsel after prior counsel withdrew denied the alien a fundamentally fair hearing in violation of due process. The court was concerned that the alien "had not understood what happened with respect to the withdrawal" and did not realize what would be required of him at the merits hearing, including re-[FN11]. While the regulation no longer references limits on continuances for respondents to obtain counsel, Operating Policies and Procedures Memorandum 94-6, Continuances (OPPM 94-6), issued by OCIJ on July 18, 1994, directs that: "absent good cause shown, no more than two continuances should be granted by an immigration judge to an alien for the purpose of obtaining legal representation." This does not prevent the judge from granting additional time, but contemplates that he or she be able to account for extra time provided.

[FN53]. Formerly, aliens within the United States were proceeded against in deportation proceedings, whereas aliens seeking admission were placed in exclusion proceedings. Today, aliens are charged with inadmissibility or deportability in a single proceeding, the removal proceeding, although the charges differ depending on whether the alien is within the United States pursuant to a lawful admission.

[FN57]. The only exception occurs when two courts have administrative control over the same area and clerically transfer a case. This occurs most frequently when a court in a detention setting and a non-detained court are located in close proximity. For example, if a detained alien at the DHS detention facility in Lancaster, California is released, his removal hearing may be transferred to the non-detained setting at the Los Angeles Immigration Court without recourse to a change of venue motion.
